45,266 PERSONS SEE LOUIS RETAIN TITLE

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 19. (AP)—The punch that has made Joe Louis the greatest fighter of his time offset the years the mighty Brown Bomber has been away from his fistic trade tonight and left his crown as king of the ring still perched on his head in the most talked of sports event in history.

Putting his championship on the line for the twenty-second time since he tore it off the head of ancient Jim Braddock, the tan terror of the fight world overcame the strongest challenge in his nine-year reign by knocking out game, but out-punched Billy Conn in the eighth round of their return match, just as he did it five years ago in the thirteenth.

A vast crowd of 45,266—well below the hoped-for estimate of a packed house in this huge ball yard—roared in cheers as the Brown Bomber flashed his old-time dynamite for one brief instant to land four fierce, vicious blows and wipe out the threat that has been hanging over him for five years.

It was just five years ago yesterday, that the Pittsburgh pretty boy piled up a wide point margin through twelve rounds then made the fatal mistake of trying to slug it out with Joe, and wound up the way just about all of them do with the blasting bomber.

For five years, Joe has waited for a chance to know he could have done it anyway. For five years, Billy has waited for another shot—sure that he could do it on boxing skill alone over the fifteen round route. And for five years the fight faithful not only of this country, but the whole world, wondered and waited.

Louis Stalks Rival

Tonight they got the answer. After seven rounds in which Louis stalked his rival, like an infantry sniper hunter stalks his prey in war-time. The action was slow, as Joe inched forward and Billy circled out of the danger from the cans of ether Joe carries in his gloves.

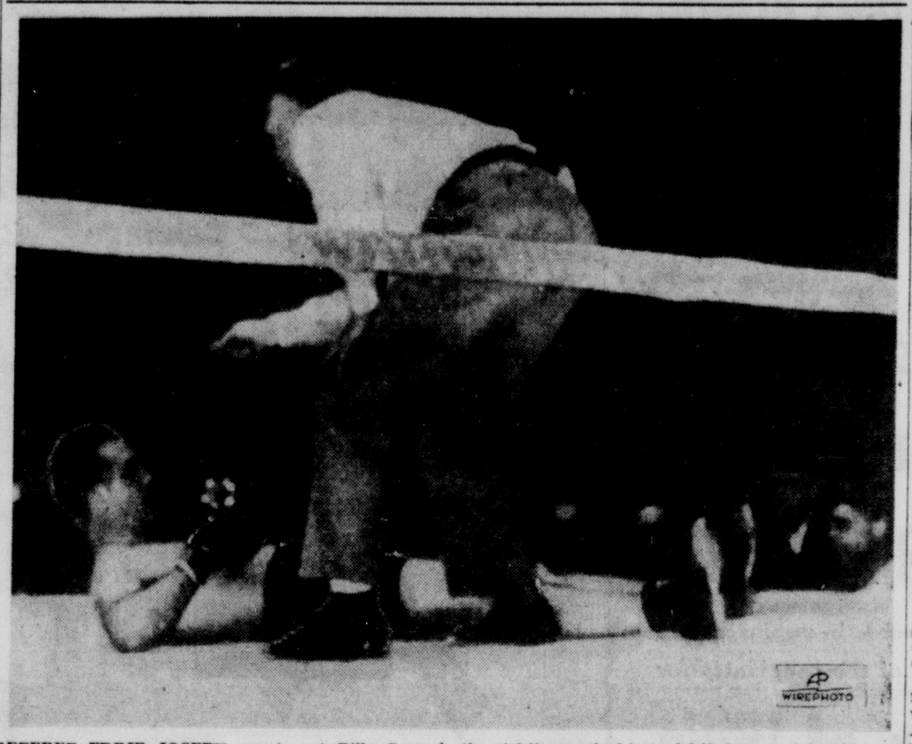

Mostly it was just left handed pecking, with a few jabs and a few hooks and a rare—very rare—right hand attempt.

Then, midway of the eighth, Joe maneuvered his man into position. He laced out with a long lashing left that straightened Billy up on his heels. The handsome challenger from Smokytown was wide open. In a flash, Louis was in. His right ripped over twice like a pile driver pounding a hole into the mud. Billy started to come down, slowly, like a building falling apart after a shell hits it.

Then came a slashing, murderous left—and it was over. The Pittsburgh canvas in the center of this spacious Bronx ball park. He lay there flat on his back, his arms outstretched and referee Eddie Joseph—the same man who counted him out just five years ago yesterday in the Polo Grounds, across the Harlem river—

Budget Director Resigns To Take World Bank Job

Harold D. Smith Leaves Federal Service for Better-Paid Post

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Budget Director Harold D. Smith, who has supervised the spending of billions by government agencies since 1939, today joined the parade of officials leaving the federal service for better-paid jobs.

Smith resigned to become vice president of the new $7,670,000,000 international bank under President Eugene Meyer at a tax-free salary of $22,500 a year, compared with the $10,000 less taxes which the government paid him.

Smith wrote the president that even if the new post had not been offered to him "it would have been only a short time until existing limitations on the salaries of public officials would have forced me out of the federal government."

"I could not have continued," he added, "without reducing certain fixed charges which I have regarded for many years as important to the security of my family."

He said, too, that the prospect of assisting "in the promotion of world prosperity and peace" was a challenge "which I cannot very well ignore."

Mr. Truman replied that he knew "at what great financial sacrifice" Smith had been serving and added: "That is too often a tragedy of public service."

The president has complained frequently to visitors and newsmen of inability to get and keep men of high calibre for government jobs. Several posts have remained unfilled for some time because, Mr. Truman said, he has been unable to find qualified men who will serve.

Smith's departure leaves an important vacancy. The president, who called Smith by his first name, depended upon him for many tasks outside the strict scope of his office. It was only yesterday that Meyer discussed Smith's departure with the president, and the resignation came suddenly.

Paul H. Appleby, who has been assistant budget director, was named acting director.

83 Are Feared Dead In German Explosion

HAENIGSEN, Germany, June 19. (AP)—At least eighty-three German and foreign workers were believed today to have been killed by an explosion of 10,000 tons of German army ammunition stored in an unused salt mine in this village, twenty miles northeast of Hannover.

The blast, touched off in the 2,000-foot deep mine yesterday by a fire of undetermined origin, flung large steel girders of the pithead gear hundreds of feet and tore the roofs off most of the mine buildings. It was heard fifty miles away at Brunswick.

The twenty Ukrainian displaced persons and sixty-three Germans who were working in the mine were believed to have died instantly. Although 400 persons were working on the surface at the time, none was hurt.

Bidault, Leader Of MRP, Is Named French President

PARIS, June 19 (AP) — Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, leader of the conservative Popular Republican Movement (MRP), was elected provisional president of France today by the Constituent Assembly, with the Communist party abstaining.

But the Communists, displaying a surprisingly conciliatory attitude, indicated they may enter Bidault's cabinet and that they would offer no objection to provision for a two-house legislature in the constitution which the assembly will draft for France's fourth republic.

Bidault, whose MRP party ousted the Communists as the strongest single French party in the June 2 elections, was selected at a time when he was helping the four-power foreign ministers conference here wrestle with peace treaty problems. He was the only candidate for the presidency. Bidault received 384 votes when the Communists withheld their 150 to underscore a preference for a government headed by the Socialists.

The slight, serious, 46-year-old former history professor and newspaperman is the third man to hold the highest French office since the liberation. Gen. DeGaulle resigned last January in a government crisis and Socialist Felix Gouin held the post next.

The election came on the heels of the first outbreak of political disorder in Paris since the liberation—an attack on a Communist party headquarters last night during a celebration of the sixth anniversary of DeGaulle's resistance appeal from London in 1940. Several persons were arrested.

Both the Socialists and the Communists indicated they would have no objections to a two-hour legislature in the draft of the constitution to be drawn by the new Constituent Assembly. The Socialists recommended a deadline of August 31 for completion of the draft.

The Socialists went further, and indicated willingness to set up a government in which the executive, legislative and judicial branches were separated.

Ministers Agree On Minor Clause For Italian Pact

Crucial Issue of Trieste Is Scheduled To Come Up Again Soon

PARIS, June 19. (AP)—The foreign ministers conference agreed today on one minor economic clause for the Italian peace treaty, as diplomatic sources predicted that unless the key problem of Trieste was solved, the "de facto" division of Europe which had existed since the war's end would last "many years."

A British informant said the ministers agreed quickly on a clause protecting the rights of Italian nationals and property in areas to be ceded to other nations, chiefly France and Yugoslavia. It has been agreed in principle that both these nations will obtain frontier rectifications.

This was one of four minor economic clauses discussed. The balance of the session found the ministers in disagreement on clauses concerning restitution of Allied property in Italy, expropriations, and compensation to Allied nationals in Italy for personal injuries.

United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin cut short today's session to permit French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault to attend the meeting of the Constituent Assembly which elected him provisional president of France.

The session lasted two hours. Tomorrow morning the ministers are expected to resume the discussion.

The difficult question of Italian reparations, upon which the ministers were deadlocked yesterday, was not discussed today.

The crucial issue of Trieste is scheduled to come up again soon, and an American delegation member said this was the "key" question in the writing of treaties for all former German satellites, topped in importance only by the German problem itself.

Hoover Reports Improved World Food Prospects

Latin America Will Supply More Grains, Beans than Expected

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover returned today with brighter word on the famine outlook—word that Latin American nations will supply 800,000 tons of grains and beans beyond previous expectations.

That still would leave a gap of 2,787,000 tons between the food needed by famished lands and the amounts in sight to help them through the next few critical months.

But Hoover told a news conference:

"There are still further possibilities from the Argentine."

Two hours after completing a 15,000-mile flight to capitals of eleven Latin American nations, he declared also that:

"The changes in the situation of fats and oils are in the same favorable directions. These (Latin American) nations are making a real contribution to closing the gap in supplies to the hungry world."

Will Report to Truman

Tomorrow the former president will report informally to President Truman on the improved outlook. It was at Mr. Truman's request, and as honorary chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee, that Hoover made the swing around South America and a previous globe-girdling survey of famine conditions in Europe and Asia.

In a report to Congress today, Mr. Truman said this country had supplied 71.1 per cent of all UNRRA relief shipments through March 31 but that more help is needed because the food crisis "is now upon us."

"Many of the countries receiving UNRRA assistance," he said, "have only a few weeks' stocks remaining and the orderly distribution of food supplies is increasingly difficult.

"In many countries even minimum food rations may not be met for people who have lived too long on the borderline of starvation."

It was principally to rustle up more food for hungry Europeans and Asiatics that Hoover toured Mexico, Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Venezuela and Cuba.

Steers Clear of OPA

As he landed at Washington's airport and again at his news conference Hoover insisted emphatically that he had not come back to take a hand in the congressional scrap over price controls and extension of OPA.

And he does not care to amplify, he said, a statement he made in Rio de Janeiro about communism. A reporter remarked that news stories had represented him as "being annoyed by Communist criticism."

He said he had not heard of the congressional haggling over price controls until he returned this afternoon, and that he had not discussed OPA by telephone with anyone in Washington while on his trip or since his return.

OPA Suspends Price Ceilings on Potatoes

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Price ceilings on potatoes—restored during the railroad strike emergency—were suspended by the OPA today.

The agency said that while today's suspension order is effective only through June 26, it expects to announce a sixty-day extension of the order shortly.

OPA Conferees To Keep Progress Of Talks Secret

Decision Presumably Is Designed To Abate Stream of Demands

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Congressmen working out the final draft of the OPA bill burrowed into a storm-shelter of secrecy today in the gusty controversy.

They decided unanimously not to disclose piecemeal the details they agree upon but to wait until their work is all done before they reveal what price controls they scrap or save.

No reason for this decision was announced, but presumably it is designed to abate the stream of demands, suggestions, criticisms and other statements from the OPA's friends and foes which have put heavy pressure upon the members of the Senate-House conference committee.

Shortly before the group opened its first session, Secretary of Commerce Wallace issued a statement declaring that to "weaken or destroy price and rent control would be to ask for the same kind of boom or bust that began at just about this time after the last war."

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, in another statement, warned that a "new cycle of wage demands and work stoppages" may result unless "effective price control" is continued.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) told reporters of the secrecy decision.

Wallace's statement, making no reference to the current congressional activity, confined itself to predictions of the effects inflation would have on business, particularly small enterprises.

"If we can avoid rocking the economic boat right now," he said, "American business in my opinion can enjoy the most profitable period in its history during the years just ahead.

"On the other hand, I am equally convinced that business faces a rocky future if we let down our guard against inflation."

The secretary praised the "unselfish and willing co-operation in the war effort" of the "vast majority of businessmen," and said they had "achieved tremendous new prestige."

"Only a small handful," he added, "are willing to jeopardize that prestige and the nation's economy by throwing price and rent controls overboard now in an attempt to reap quicker and even greater profits."

Two Jews Lose Lives in Latest Holy Land Clash

Death Toll Reaches 24; British Troops Seek Missing Officers

JERUSALEM, June 19—(AP)—British troops, pressing a broad hunt for six missing British officers, killed two Jews in a clash near the Lebanese border today, raising to twenty-four the toll of dead in the third day of violence in the turbulent Holy Land.

The latest clash occurred in the village of Kfar Giladi as troops and police joined in searching and blocking off huge areas of Palestine. Three other Jews were injured in the battle.

The apparent kidnaping of a sixth British officer was disclosed earlier today.

British soldiers with automatic weapons searched houses and patrolled streets of Tel Aviv, all-Jewish city of 200,000. Tel Aviv became a dead city under a strict curfew imposed at 5 a. m. this morning, with almost all residents remaining behind locked doors. Tonight army officers said the curfew would be lifted at midnight when search operations were completed. The curfew had been slated to extend until 4 a. m. tomorrow.

Night and day squads of police and soldiers operated in and around suspected hideouts of Haganah, underground Jewish movement, arresting scores of suspects and uncovering hoards of illegal weapons.

The kidnapings have been attributed to Irgun Zvai Leumi, an illegal Jewish movement, but the wave of attacks on a military scale against frontier bridges connecting Palestine with its neighbors and against Palestine rail centers was believed to be the work of the larger Haganah organization. As yet officials have discovered no underlying unity between the operations of these two dissident underground organizations.

Police believed the latest missing officer, British Maj. H. B. Chadwick, as well as his five fellow officers abducted yesterday, may be held hostage by the Irgun group for two of its members now under sentence of death for raiding a British military camp in March.

Chadwick failed to appear at a general command meeting at the King David hotel last night.

Moscow Submits Its Own Control Plan to United Nations Agency

Soviet Union Favors System under Security Council Principles

BRITAIN PLEDGES FULL CO-OPERATION

China Would Yield Veto Right if Other Powers Do Likewise

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Soviet Russia today rejected a United States proposal to abolish the veto on atomic matters and formally presented its own atomic control plan which would put the whole system of control under the Security council and the United Nations setup.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, told the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission that an atomic commission he proposed for control of all atomic matters must conform to the principles laid down for the operations of the Security council.

Gromyko said he made this statement because some efforts were being made to "undermine" the principle of unanimity of the powers. This principle provides that each of the five big powers can block by veto any substantive question arising in the Security council.

Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative on the commission, proposed a different scheme of atomic control last Friday when the commission first met. Baruch also emphasized that the United States would accept no veto on atomic matters.

China Would Yield Veto Rights

Russia was the first power besides the United States holding the veto power to declare itself. China's delegate, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, immediately followed Gromyko today with the flat declaration that China would yield its veto rights on atomic matters if the other veto-holding powers would do likewise.

After declaring that the atomic energy commission must work in full conformity with the Charter of the United Nations (which includes the veto principle), Gromyko said:

"Efforts made to undermine the activity of the Security council, including efforts directed to undermine the unanimity of the members of the Security council, upon questions of substance are incompatible with the interests of the United Nations created by the international organization for the preservation of peace and security. Such attempts should be resisted.

"I considered it necessary to make this statement in order that from the very beginning of the work of our commission I might make clear the position of the Soviet government as regards the question of the character and basis of the work of the commission upon the question of the preparation of its recommendations as regards measures of control of atomic energy placed before the Security council.

Britain Pledges Co-operation

Great Britain pledged fullest possible co-operation to the United States in helping shape a plan for atomic control but its delegate, Sir Alexander Cadogan, made no reference to the veto. France has not declared its position.

Brazil and Mexico briefly stated their indorsement of the Baruch plan and the commission then adjourned until 3 p. m. EDT, next Tuesday.

Russia formally proposed:

1. Conclusion of an international agreement for the outlawing of atomic energy as a weapon of mass destruction.

2. Organization of a commission for the control of atomic energy.

"Hidden Writing" Is Discovered On Suzanne Degnan Ransom Note

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—The discovery of "hidden writing"—including more than a score of names—on the Suzanne Degnan ransom note was reported today by Detective Chief Walter Storms, who predicted it would lead them to the kidnap-killer of the 6-year-old girl.

The chief investigator of the baffling five-months-old crime said the "hidden writing" consisted of "hundreds of impressions" of names, telephone numbers and words made on the ransom note from writings on sheets above it in a writing pad.

Storms discussed the new clues after the Chicago Daily News announced in a copyrighted story that one of its staff artists, Frank San Hamel, had discovered the tracings on a photograph of the note when he was preparing it for reproduction in the paper.

Some of the first words reported discovered in the "hidden writing" were: "Policeman, oring, tens, rents, ready, pay, reward, singles, get 5's, sew, rat, beware not to, meet me, policeman or, cash and leave car."

The News said the FBI office in Washington which had examined the original note for fingerprints, was asked after San Hamel's discovery to re-examine the note for hidden writing and the story added:

"And here came the first big disappointment of the inquiry—the FBI reported its experts could find no hidden writing on the ransom note."

Chicago police were optimistic, however, about the new clues.

Gubernatorial Candidates Debate Pros, Cons of Campaign Spending

BALTIMORE, June 19. (AP)—Contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor warmly debated the pros and cons of campaign expenditures today.

William Preston Lane, Jr., one of the three leading candidates, defended the conduct of his own drive for the nomination and asserted, in turn, that a part of the expenses of the campaign of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, an opponent, was being borne by the taxpayers.

Earlier this week, Tawes's campaign manager, W. Lee Elgin, declared that money was being spent recklessly in behalf of Lane's candidacy. Lane dubbed Elgin a "hatchet man" for Tawes.

Meanwhile, Rep. H. Streett Baldwin, third major aspirant for the nomination, criticised the spending of "huge sums" for Lane, coupling his remarks with a declaration that Lane's platform planks were mostly "mere platitudes."

In replay to Elgin, Lane said that "at least some of the expenses incurred in behalf of Mr. Tawes have been imposed on the taxpayers of the state, including, for instance, the time taken by Mr. Elgin himself away from his duties of his office (as state motor vehicles commissioner)."

Lane said Elgin had "pretended that there is something unfair or improper" in expenditures for advertising, radio, printing and other "legitimate and necessary" measures to inform the voters of what his ticket proposed to do "to improve the government of the state."

"What advisable expenses have been incurred," Lane said, "have been or will be paid for by the candidates on my ticket, our friends and other contributors who believe in us and in our desire to give the state a good administration."

Lane said that it appeared to him that Elgin's "charges were deliberately designed to prevent the public from knowing that state property—automobiles and the time of state

Senate Group Approves Vinson's Nomination As U. S. Chief Justice

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The Senate Judiciary committee voted today to recommend confirmation of the nomination of Fred M. Vinson as chief justice of the United States.

Chairman McCarran (D-Nev) told reporters the vote was unanimous except for one member who would make his position clear on the Senate floor. He declined to identify the member.

McCarran said the confirmation would be placed before the Senate for action tomorrow. Vinson, former secretary of the treasury, would succeed the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone.

Grand Mufti of Jerusalem Flees To Egypt; Asks King for Sanctuary

CAIRO, Thursday, June 20—(AP)—King Farouk, of Egypt, announced today that he had received the grand mufti of Jerusalem who had asked for sanctuary.

A communique issued at Abdin palace said that at 8 p. m. last night (2 p. m. EDT) the grand mufti, Haj Mohammed Amin El Husseini, "called at the palace, signed the royal visitors' books and asked for an audience from King Farouk."

"The audience was granted," the communique continued, "and the mufti told the king: 'I have taken refuge in your palace.'"

A highly-reliable source, who declined to be quoted by name, said Egypt would grant sanctuary to the mufti.

Whereabouts of the mufti, the spiritual leader of Palestine Arabs, had been the subject of widespread speculation since he fled from his palace of exile in a Paris suburb early this month.

Efforts were made to locate him in various places in the Middle East. Last Friday and Saturday he was the object of an unsuccessful search by the British navy and Palestinian police aboard the British transport Devonshire off Port Said.

The prevailing opinion in Cairo is that the mufti escaped from France to Egypt by plane. However, the circumstances surrounding his mysterious escape still have not been fully explained.

The 53-year-old mufti is an implacable foe of Jewish immigration

"There are still further possibilities from the Argentine."

Two hours after completing a 15,000-mile flight to capitals of eleven Latin American nations, he declared also that:

"The changes in the situation of fats and oils are in the same favorable directions. These (Latin American) nations are making a real contribution to closing the gap in supplies to the hungry world."

Will Report to Truman

Tomorrow the former president will report informally to President Truman on the improved outlook. It was at Mr. Truman's request, and as honorary chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee, that Hoover made the swing around South America and a previous globe-girdling survey of famine conditions in Europe and Asia.

In a report to Congress today, Mr. Truman said this country had supplied 71.1 per cent of all UNRRA relief shipments through March 31 but that more help is needed because the food crisis "is now upon us."

"Many of the countries receiving UNRRA assistance," he said, "have only a few weeks' stocks remaining and the orderly distribution of food supplies is increasingly difficult.

"In many countries even minimum food rations may not be met for people who have lived too long on the borderline of starvation."

It was principally to rustle up more food for hungry Europeans and Asiatics that Hoover toured Mexico, Panama, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Venezuela and Cuba.

Steers Clear of OPA

As he landed at Washington's airport and again at his news conference Hoover insisted emphatically that he had not come back to take a hand in the congressional scrap over price controls and extension of OPA.

And he does not care to amplify, he said, a statement he made in Rio de Janeiro about communism. A reporter remarked that news stories had represented him as "being annoyed by Communist criticism."

He said he had not heard of the congressional haggling over price controls until he returned this afternoon, and that he had not discussed OPA by telephone with anyone in Washington while on his trip or since his return.

OPA Suspends Price Ceilings on Potatoes

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Price ceilings on potatoes—restored during the railroad strike emergency—were suspended by the OPA today.

The agency said that while today's suspension order is effective only through June 26, it expects to announce a sixty-day extension of the order shortly.

LANA TO WED CHAIN STORE HEIR

OPA Conferees To Keep Progress Of Talks Secret

Decision Presumably Is Designed To Abate Stream of Demands

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — Congressmen working out the final draft of the OPA bill burrowed into a storm-shelter of secrecy today in the gusty controversy.

They decided unanimously not to disclose piecemeal the details they agree upon but to wait until their work is all done before they reveal what price controls they scrap or save.

No reason for this decision was announced, but presumably it is designed to abate the stream of demands, suggestions, criticisms and other statements from the OPA's friends and foes which have put heavy pressure upon the members of the Senate-House conference committee.

Shortly before the group opened its first session, Secretary of Commerce Wallace issued a statement declaring that to "weaken or destroy price and rent control would be to ask for the same kind of boom or bust that began at just about this time after the last war."

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, in another statement, warned that a "new cycle of wage demands and work stoppages" may result unless "effective price control" is continued.

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) told reporters of the secrecy decision.

Wallace's statement, making no reference to the current congressional activity, confined itself to predictions of the effects inflation would have on business, particularly small enterprises.

"If we can avoid rocking the economic boat right now," he said, "American business in my opinion can enjoy the most profitable period in its history during the years just ahead.

"On the other hand, I am equally convinced that business faces a rocky future if we let down our guard against inflation."

The secretary praised the "unselfish and willing co-operation in the war effort" of the "vast majority of businessmen," and said they had "achieved tremendous new prestige."

"Only a small handful," he added, "are willing to jeopardize that prestige and the nation's economy by throwing price and rent controls overboard now in an attempt to reap quicker and even greater profits."

Two Jews Lose Lives in Latest Holy Land Clash

Death Toll Reaches 24; British Troops Seek Missing Officers

JERUSALEM, June 19—(AP)—British troops, pressing a broad hunt for six missing British officers, killed two Jews in a clash near the Lebanese border today, raising to twenty-four the toll of dead in the third day of violence in the turbulent Holy Land.

The latest clash occurred in the village of Kfar Giladi as troops and police joined in searching and blocking off huge areas of Palestine. Three other Jews were injured in the battle.

The apparent kidnaping of a sixth British officer was disclosed earlier today.

British soldiers with automatic weapons searched houses and patrolled streets of Tel Aviv, all-Jewish city of 200,000. Tel Aviv became a dead city under a strict curfew imposed at 5 a. m. this morning, with almost all residents remaining behind locked doors. Tonight army officers said the curfew would be lifted at midnight when search operations were completed. The curfew had been slated to extend until 4 a. m. tomorrow.

Night and day squads of police and soldiers operated in and around suspected hideouts of Haganah, underground Jewish movement, arresting scores of suspects and uncovering hoards of illegal weapons.

The kidnapings have been attributed to Irgun Zvai Leumi, an illegal Jewish movement, but the wave of attacks on a military scale against frontier bridges connecting Palestine with its neighbors and against Palestine rail centers was believed to be the work of the larger Haganah organization. As yet officials have discovered no underlying unity between the operations of these two dissident underground organizations.

Police believed the latest missing officer, British Maj. H. B. Chadwick, as well as his five fellow officers abducted yesterday, may be held hostage by the Irgun group for two of its members now under sentence of death for raiding a British military camp in March.

Chadwick failed to appear at a general command meeting at the King David hotel last night.

Moscow Submits Its Own Control Plan to United Nations Agency

Soviet Union Favors System under Security Council Principles

BRITAIN PLEDGES FULL CO-OPERATION

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Soviet Russia today rejected a United States proposal to abolish the veto on atomic matters and formally presented its own atomic control plan which would put the whole system of control under the Security council and the United Nations setup.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate, told the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission that an atomic commission he proposed for control of all atomic matters must conform to the principles laid down for the operations of the Security council.

Gromyko said he made this statement because some efforts were being made to "undermine" the principle of unanimity of the powers. This principle provides that each of the five big powers can block by veto any substantive question arising in the Security council.

Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative on the commission, proposed a different scheme of atomic control last Friday when the commission first met. Baruch also emphasized that the United States would accept no veto on atomic matters.

China Would Yield Veto Rights

Russia was the first power besides the United States holding the veto power to declare itself. China's delegate, Dr. Quo Tai-Chi, immediately followed Gromyko today with the flat declaration that China would yield its veto rights on atomic matters if the other veto-holding powers would do likewise.

After declaring that the atomic energy commission must work in full conformity with the Charter of the United Nations (which includes the veto principle), Gromyko said:

"Efforts made to undermine the activity of the Security council, including efforts directed to undermine the unanimity of the members of the Security council, upon questions of substance are incompatible with the interests of the United Nations created by the international organization for the preservation of peace and security. Such attempts should be resisted.

"I considered it necessary to make this statement in order that from the very beginning of the work of our commission I might make clear the position of the Soviet government as regards the question of the character and basis of the work of the commission upon the question of the preparation of its recommendations as regards measures of control of atomic energy placed before the Security council.

Britain Pledges Co-operation

Great Britain pledged fullest possible co-operation to the United States in helping shape a plan for atomic control but its delegate, Sir Alexander Cadogan, made no reference to the veto. France has not declared its position.

Brazil and Mexico briefly stated their indorsement of the Baruch plan and the commission then adjourned until 3 p. m. EDT, next Tuesday.

Russia formally proposed:

1. Conclusion of an international agreement for the outlawing of atomic energy as a weapon of mass destruction.

2. Organization of a commission for the control of atomic energy.

"Hidden Writing" Is Discovered On Suzanne Degnan Ransom Note

CHICAGO, June 19 (AP)—The discovery of "hidden writing"—including more than a score of names—on the Suzanne Degnan ransom note was reported today by Detective Chief Walter Storms, who predicted it would lead them to the kidnap-killer of the 6-year-old girl.

The chief investigator of the baffling five-months-old crime said the "hidden writing" consisted of "hundreds of impressions" of names, telephone numbers and words made on the ransom note from writings on sheets above it in a writing pad.

Storms discussed the new clues after the Chicago Daily News announced in a copyrighted story that one of its staff artists, Frank San Hamel, had discovered the tracings on a photograph of the note when he was preparing it for reproduction in the paper.

Some of the first words reported discovered in the "hidden writing" were: "Policeman, oring, tens, rents, ready, pay, reward, singles, get 5's, sew, rat, beware not to, meet me, policeman or, cash and leave car."

The News said the FBI office in Washington which had examined the original note for fingerprints, was asked after San Hamel's discovery to re-examine the note for hidden writing and the story added:

"And here came the first big disappointment of the inquiry—the FBI reported its experts could find no hidden writing on the ransom note."

Chicago police were optimistic, however, about the new clues.

Gubernatorial Candidates Debate Pros, Cons of Campaign Spending

BALTIMORE, June 19. (AP)—Contenders for the Democratic nomination for governor warmly debated the pros and cons of campaign expenditures today.

William Preston Lane, Jr., one of the three leading candidates, defended the conduct of his own drive for the nomination and asserted, in turn, that a part of the expenses of the campaign of Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, an opponent, was being borne by the taxpayers.

Earlier this week, Tawes's campaign manager, W. Lee Elgin, declared that money was being spent recklessly in behalf of Lane's candidacy. Lane dubbed Elgin a "hatchet man" for Tawes.

Meanwhile, Rep. H. Streett Baldwin, third major aspirant for the nomination, criticised the spending of "huge sums" for Lane, coupling his remarks with a declaration that Lane's platform planks were mostly "mere platitudes."

In replay to Elgin, Lane said that "at least some of the expenses incurred in behalf of Mr. Tawes have been imposed on the taxpayers of the state, including, for instance, the time taken by Mr. Elgin himself away from his duties of his office (as state motor vehicles commissioner)."

Lane said Elgin had "pretended that there is something unfair or improper" in expenditures for advertising, radio, printing and other "legitimate and necessary" measures to inform the voters of what his ticket proposed to do "to improve the government of the state."

"What advisable expenses have been incurred," Lane said, "have been or will be paid for by the candidates on my ticket, our friends and other contributors who believe in us and in our desire to give the state a good administration."

Lane said that it appeared to him that Elgin's "charges were deliberately designed to prevent the public from knowing that state property—automobiles and the time of state

Senate Group Approves Vinson's Nomination As U. S. Chief Justice

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP) — The Senate Judiciary committee voted today to recommend confirmation of the nomination of Fred M. Vinson as chief justice of the United States.

Chairman McCarran (D-Nev) told reporters the vote was unanimous except for one member who would make his position clear on the Senate floor. He declined to identify the member.

McCarran said the confirmation would be placed before the Senate for action tomorrow. Vinson, former secretary of the treasury, would succeed the late Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone.

Grand Mufti of Jerusalem Flees To Egypt; Asks King for Sanctuary

CAIRO, Thursday, June 20—(AP)—King Farouk, of Egypt, announced today that he had received the grand mufti of Jerusalem who had asked for sanctuary.

A communique issued at Abdin palace said that at 8 p. m. last night (2 p. m. EDT) the grand mufti, Haj Mohammed Amin El Husseini, "called at the palace, signed the royal visitors' books and asked for an audience from King Farouk."

"The audience was granted," the communique continued, "and the mufti told the king: 'I have taken refuge in your palace.'"

A highly-reliable source, who declined to be quoted by name, said Egypt would grant sanctuary to the mufti.

Whereabouts of the mufti, the spiritual leader of Palestine Arabs, had been the subject of widespread speculation since he fled from his palace of exile in a Paris suburb early this month.

Efforts were made to locate him in various places in the Middle East. Last Friday and Saturday he was the object of an unsuccessful search by the British navy and Palestinian police aboard the British transport Devonshire off Port Said.

The prevailing opinion in Cairo is that the mufti escaped from France to Egypt by plane. However, the circumstances surrounding his mysterious escape still have not been fully explained.

The 53-year-old mufti is an implacable foe of Jewish immigration

Whooping Cough Can Be Abolished, Doctor Asserts

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

The best thing about whooping cough is that in this day and age no child need have it. It can be virtually abolished from any community.

And that is about the only good thing that can be said of this tormenting disease which kills so many babies under the age of two, and so weakens older youngsters with repeated bouts of convulsive coughing that they fall an easy prey to other illnesses.

Helpful Serum

As yet, no completely satisfactory methods of treatment which directly attack the disease itself have been found, although what is known as hyperimmune serum often is helpful. That is, nothing which will kill or neutralize the germ which causes whooping cough has been discovered.

Some recent animal experiments have given a broad hint that perhaps the new drug, streptomycin will be of value. But so far we cannot be sure because tests on whooping cough in human beings have not been carried out for a sufficient length of time to determine streptomycin's effect. Until further work is done, chief reliance in saving lives from whooping cough must be placed on prevention.

According to Dr. Louis W. Sauer, of the Northwestern university medical school, whooping cough has been practically banished from the city of Evanston, Illinois, during the past few years through the conscientious application of a few simple rules.

Preventive Injections

Most important step in this program of prevention is the giving of injections of whooping cough vaccine to all infants as soon as possible after they reach six months of age. Furthermore, even though children have received this vaccine, it is necessary to give another injection or booster dose to increase their immunity if they should at a later date be exposed to the disease.

Dr. Sauer suggests a third injection just before a child enters school. There are some who believe that the whooping cough vaccine may be effective in building protection against the disease even though it is given as early as the third month.

This part of the program immunizes the coming generation of school children but it does nothing to protect those of the present from this highly contagious illness. Therefore, the second step in any preventive program must be the early diagnosis and immediate quarantine of any who contract whooping cough. In this way, spread of the disease will be lessened.

Children Separated

Children who have been in contact with the disease and who are not themselves immune, should be kept separate from other children until the incubation period has passed. Only in this way can a community make certain that those in the early and most highly contagious stage of whooping cough are not passing it on to others.

Early symptoms are those of a common cold and, for this reason, a sick child may infect dozens of playmates before the true nature of the cough is recognized and quarantine established.

When a baby, no matter how young, is exposed to whooping cough, the infant may be protected by at once giving an injection of what is called human pertussis immune serum. This is blood serum taken from adults who have had whooping cough in childhood and who have received injections of whooping cough vaccine to increase their immunity to the disease.

It is suggested that if the baby was exposed to the disease for only a short time, one injection of the immune serum given into the muscles of the buttocks will be sufficient. If there has been more prolonged exposure, two injections at a three-to-five-day interval are advised.

Mothers should follow the advice of the physician concerning when the whooping cough vaccine is to be given and, should an infant be exposed to the disease, the prompt administration of the immune serum may be life-saving.

Mounting Fire Losses Are Cause for Concern

Crimes involving property and currency do not destroy national wealth but merely result in the interchange of wealth among individuals. Destruction of property by fire constitutes as real a loss of wealth to the nation as does loss of production because of strikes. The interchange of wealth through thievery and larceny in its many forms is bad enough today—in fact, it is a national scandal. But the increase in loss of wealth through fire is no less shocking.

Frank A. Christensen, president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, said recently that if the present rate of fire losses continues unchecked, the damage this year will exceed $600,000,000, and make 1946 more costly in this respect than the years of the great San Francisco and Chicago fires. He estimated the loss through fires of the last twelve months at nearly $500,000,000, adding that a large part of it could have been prevented.

"For eight years now this evidence of national carelessness and inattention has been growing at a faster rate every year," he said. "This devastating waste of preventable fire will have to be slowed down somewhere soon. We are a wealthy country, but no country, however rich, can escape the consequences of such a drain on vital living facilities."

Referring to the great loss of life in fires, he said that "The great tragedy of the more than 10,000 lives lost every year in fires is that a large number of those who perish are helpless children." He said an average of twenty-seven lives are lost in fires every day. The question of why fire losses are increasing so rapidly was discussed at the board's eightieth anniversary meeting at which spokesmen placed the blame chiefly on "war weariness." Responsibility was linked to the human element in terms of relaxed vigilance, and to the failure of such industrial and housing equipment as electrical wiring and heating apparatus.

While hope was seen in the wider adoption of approved building codes designed to reduce potential fire hazards in new housing and industrial structures, this was considered incidental to the need for an aroused public consciousness of the gravity of the situation.

Fires are lamentable at any time, but in this period of a great housing shortage and a deficient supply of building materials, they are indeed tragic. Families ousted from homes by fires find it difficult to obtain other quarters, as everyone else does. The more houses are destroyed by fire, the greater the housing shortage. Yet the loss in terms of property, great as it is, does not compare with the tremendous loss of human lives.

New Light on All-Night Restaurants' Popularity

Some persons go on "food benders" for relief from emotional frustration in the same way that others engage in alcoholic bouts, according to Dr. Louis H. Twyeffort, a Philadelphia psychiatrist.

Excessive eating, with consequent excessive weight, often can be traced to an emotional disorder, Dr. Twyeffort told a clinic session of the American College of Physicians. To show that such cases of extreme overweight may erroneously be diagnosed as due to a glandular disorder, he cited the case of a youth in his twenties who weighed 442 pounds as a result of excessive eating and who told the doctor: "All my life I have hidden my troubles behind a plate of food. If I had taken to alcohol instead I would have been dead long ago." That latter statement might be difficult to prove.

Dr. Twyeffort recalled that the youth on one occasion had gone on a four-hour spree at an all-night restaurant after he had fallen out with his girl friend. Under psychiatric treatment, the youthful roly-poly was enabled to cope with his emotional problems and "no longer had to regress to the more primitive ways of seeking sensory satisfaction." Taking off 100 pounds, the lad "subsequently made an excellent record in the merchant marine," Dr. Twyeffort reported.

This story casts a new light on the popularity of all-night restaurants and stirs speculation, too, about the possible number of frustrated patrons in a crowded roadside diner. Here, if anywhere, persons eat as if starved, yet it may be they are only love-starved. Does a train of hamburgers, dripping with ketchup, go further in making a man forget the pangs of unrequited love than a succession of double ryes or brandies?

Middle age, too, requires its compensations either in frustration or resignation, and the solace of eating seems to be fairly standard. But resultant overweight only adds to the burden and sense of futility. But in the months ahead adequate emotional relief will no longer be acquirable in this gustatory manner, judging from the daily bulletins on the food outlook.

Debt Is Constant Source of Misgiving

THE NATION'S $280,000,000,000 federal debt is a constant source of misgiving and will continue to be for years to come. Experts of the Federal Reserve Board have completed a study of the inflationary potentialities of the debt policy of the government and of the political dangers for commercial banks inherent in their high earning position brought about by large holdings of government bonds.

Interest on government bonds, it is declared, will soon more than cover all bank expenses. The experts wonder if the banks will effectively discharge their function as risk takers or whether they will prefer to leave the financing of business ventures largely to speculators. When the bulk of bank earnings comes from the most reckless of all securities, increased complacency seems a more probable outcome than increased venturesomeness.

Any increase in the public debt will expand the currency. Large redemption of government bonds would put currency in the hands of the public at a time when there is nothing to do with it except bid up the prices of scarce articles.

The conclusion is that the replacing of short term bonds by long term bonds, made attractive by higher rates of interest, would stabilize the situation until this country is able to begin reducing its towering obligation.

Saving the Redwoods In California

THE DAR and local California organizations are continuing their campaign for the preservation of the native redwood trees. The territory covered by these trees is immense and the project to save them involves the building of roads through the forests for motorists, whose increasing numbers magnify the work of the socities that are interested.

The main road through the redwoods now is a two-lane driveway, necessarily circuitous in order to avoid the trees that would have to be removed to provide a straight route through the woods. A four-lane way has now been proposed and responsible people who are back of the enterprise are considering whether this ought to be done, or whether some alternative may be devised to save the trees that would have to be sacrificed if the width of the roadway were increased.

Perhaps two one-way roads might be the solution. But, at any rate, the forests should be preserved.

Those who are looking for signs of normalcy are greatly encouraged by news that a flagpole sitter is on the job in an Ohio city.

Striving for Perfection

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Most of us have long given thought to that famous sentence: "Trifles make perfection—and perfection is no trifle." I was impressed with this line when reading a book about Lafcadio Hearn. Few writers in all literature have taken such pains in their expression of thoughts.

Noguchi, Hearn's friend in Japan, once said of him: "Writing was for him no light work; he wrote with his life and blood."

A friend wrote Hearn in admiration for a paragraph in his book "Kotto," which read as follows: "Then let me hope that the state to which I am destined will not be worse than that of a cicada or of a dragon-fly:—climbing the cryptomerias to clash my tiny cymbals in the sun or haunting the holy silence of lotus pools with a soundless flicker of amethyst and gold."

Hearn replied to his friend that he had rewritten that paragraph 17 times before he was able "to express to his own satisfaction the impression in his mind." Hearn died in Japan in 1904. Increasingly, each year, does his fame as a literary stylist increase, and his books will be read so long as beauty of style and exactness of expression shall live. Any enthusiast of Hearn's will readily agree with this statement. His exactness of expression and his love of beauty place his writings among the treasures of literature.

It is the regret of us all that Thomas Wolfe did not live to pour out his life-blood into even greater books than those few which he completed during his brief period of life, for he, too, was a writer who wrote "with his life and blood."

Who would even attempt to change a single word in Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg Address? Yet no one dreams that he sought for perfection of style when he wrote and delivered it. The striving for perfection lay hidden in his desire for a perfect expression from his heart on so solemn an occasion.

Words that live and deeds that never die in their influence have their birth in the heart. Said that bricklayer, when interrogated as to what he was doing, "I am building a Cathedral!"

Wilkinson Advertisement Meets with Opposition

Editor The Cumberland News:

May I refer please to an article by Mr. C. N. "Jerry" Wilkinson in the Sunday Times of June 16, 1946, wherein as the closing paragraph of a paid political advertisement he made the following statement:

Quote: "I pledge myself to clean government, administered by upright, untarnished people, and I will use all my efforts against everything else."

Untarnish is the reverse of tarnish and as he promises an untarnished administration, it is evident that all of those in any present official capacity are tarnished.

Before proceeding with a subject of such vital importance, permit me to quote the dictionary on the definition of the word "tarnished" which is defined as meaning "to stain or disgrace, hence a blemish".

It is quite true that such an article (probably ghost written) did not infer such a reference but the implication is there nevertheless, thus the penalty one pays for loose wording of statements using terms without reference to their literal meaning. The inference therefor casts a reflection and cloud upon the integrity and honesty of every county employee and appointee.

It is regrettable that Mr. Wilkinson elects to resort to a smear campaign that not only effects other candidates but every employe of the county. It even invades the sanctum of his home and involves his family regardless of his political views.

The implication is obviously an attack upon those who value a reputation, something that even a politician cannot remove. Those of us, servants of the public, are subject to errors of ommission but not errors of commission as we stand accused. It is indeed poor recompense for a man who is interested in his work in an endeavor to give value received in return for his effort and his ability to perform the required duties of his office.

So vent your speen, Mr. Wilkinson, and direct it to those to whom you refer for the sake of common decency.

"IRON MAIDEN OF NUREMBERG"

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Mihailovic Was Branded Collaborator By British Intelligence, Pearson Says

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, June 19—The British foreign office is quaking in its boots for fear a secret report on Gen. Mihailovic written by British intelligence in 1944 will be brought to light during the trial of the Chetnik leader. The report shows that the British knew all along that Mihailovic was collaborating with the enemy.

"Today (September, 1944)," states the British intelligence report, "they (the Chetniks) are to be found almost everywhere fighting alongside German and satellite troops, but they still profess to be pro-Allied at heart."

British intelligence went on to explain that they believed Mihailovic to be sincerely anti-German, but that he considered Tito's partisans more dangerous to the Yugoslavia monarchy than the Axis.

"Once he had made this decision," British intelligence states, Mihailovic was irrevocably committed to the path of collaboration. Nowhere were his forces strong enough to remain hostile to the Germans and the quisling regimes and yet defeat the partisans. . . .

Regarded as "Traitor"

"Though believing himself a patriot, he (Mihailovic) was regarded by most of his countrymen as a traitor. All this was the inevitable result of his decision to regard the partisans rather than the Germans as the main enemy. . . .

"The present alignment of Chetnik forces on the side of the Germans today is neither accidental nor remediable. It is inherent in the very nature of the Chetnik standpoint. To hope to 'reform' or 'galvanize' the Chetnik organization into anti-Axis activity is to misunderstand its very essence. The Chetniks are not so much the adherents of a clear-cut political programme as the product of a psychological state of mind—the frustration, confusion and resentment resulting from the sudden collapse of the state.

"To look for any prominent leaders or elements within Mihailovic's Chetnik organization as uncompromised by collaboration or with a consistent record of anti-Axis action behind them is an illusion. None such exists. The Chetnik rank and file may have been misled and still be potentially capable of action within the partisan forces, but their leaders have contributed nothing to the record of Yugoslavia's heroic three years' resistance, nor can they be expected to contribute anything to her approaching resurgence," British intelligence concluded.

Mailman Sullivan

Two little attention is paid in this political-ridden capital to the quiet, unassuming officials who consistently do a bang-up job.

One of them is Assistant Postmaster General Gael Sullivan. Coming from Chicago and trained under Mayor Ed Kelly, Sullivan at first looked like a pure political appointee. In six months, however, he has become one of the most effective members of the little cabinet.

On July 1, Sullivan will see one of his dreams come true—when regularly scheduled helicopter mail deliveries will begin in the Los Angeles area. Sullivan is also experimenting with jet planes and rockets for swifter mail services, hopes to have twelve-hour mail service between any two communities in the U. S. A. He is also working on a plan for shipping all first-class mail by air at any time Congress gives him the green light. Three-cent air mail, he believes, is not only possible, but practical.

Sullivan is one bureaucrat who is really underpaid. Any morning you can find him at his desk by 7:30 a. m., and he never leaves before 8 p. m. When you add up the hours Sullivan puts in on his job and the pay he receives, his hourly wage is less than that of Philadelphia garbage collectors.

Adm. Hart Forgets

Some military leaders have short memories—especially when the question of army-navy unification is being debated.

The other day, Adm. Tommy Hart, now a senator from Connecticut, delivered himself quite an oration, telling other senators what a foul, iniquitous, unworkable, impossible thing unification is. The idea of unifyng the army and navy, he said, is out of the question.

However, the admiral apparently had forgotten his own experiences in the Pacific war and what he wrote about them. After he was relieved from command following a series of disastrous defeats, Adm. Hart wrote some articles for the Saturday Evening Post in which he came out strong for unified command.

For instance, here is what he wrote about the United States landing in the Solomon islands, at the time he was an admiral, not a senator:

"The unified command principle—commanders who are supreme in their respective theatres—which is already a feature of this war, will no doubt obtain. The idea has been found correct while we were on the defensive in the Pacific, and it seems absolutely essential in offensive amphibious war."

Again, here is what Adm. Hart wrote about the splendid unified command of the Japs when they mopped up the British at Singapore and Malaya:

"The RAF had a considerable force on Malaya, within easy flying range of the sea area where it all happened. The British battleships received no aid from the RAF, either in reconnaissance or in defense by fighter planes against the Jap air attack which resulted in the loss of the Repulse and Prince of Wales and their commander.

"We have never heard why the RAF fighters, which were half an hour away, gave Adm. Phillips no help whatever. The British way does not look good for our purposes.

"The history of the campaign is well enough known, and it seems necessary only to repeat that the Japs showed up an example in which troops, ships and aircraft were splendidly co-ordinated, both in plan and execution.

"Now, in the face of the record, if we are going to copy foreign institutions, whom should we copy? Shall it be our British friends, or our Japanese enemies—themselves the world's most renowned copyists, if you will?"

With the heat of battle over, however, and Adm. Hart now a senator, he has reverted to the old peacetime tradition of army-navy rivalry.

Capital Chaff

Both the Chinese nationalists and the Chinese Communists are bursting to learn what's in the script for "The Life of Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen," movie to be made by Producer Lester Cowan. Perhaps Gen. Marshall could use oriental curiosity to persuade both sides to get together . . . Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Kenny is the latest to knife President Truman's atomic control policy. Kenny testified on Capitol Hill that he was personally in favor of giving the military greater control over atomic energy—which was directly contrary to his commander-in-chief . . . British tories are urging ex-Prime Minister Winston Churchill to resign as tory leader of Commons and devote himself solely to writing his memoirs. They seem to feel he can be more useful in private life.

Sullivan Compares Wages and Prices To Hen and Egg

By MARK SULLIVAN

Very shortly, the country's top domestic problem is going to be put before us in the form of that eternal and inconclusive controversy—which came first, the hen or the egg. The egg is wages and strikes, the hen is prices and the Office of Price Administration; or vice versa as you choose. The argument over priority will figure large in the coming Congressional campaign, probably dominate it.

The bill extending OPA, but at the same time limiting it, is now in conference between House and Senate committees. These will produce a common version, which presumably will be adopted by both chambers. Thereupon President Truman will make a choice. Either he will accept the limitations put upon OPA by Congress, and sign the bill; or he will veto the bill, on the ground that the limitations go so far as to make OPA ineffective. The first course is the more likely.

The outcome must appear by June 30. On that day the present OPA expires. Whatever the outcome, it is certain to be less than is wanted by OPA and the administration. Thereupon the argument will begin.

Sees More Strikes

Officials responsible for OPA, particularly Mr. Chester Bowles, are already voicing their side. They are saying that expiration of OPA, or continuation of it in any form Congress seems willing to adopt, will lead to soaring increases in prices, higher cost of living. This in turn, it is asserted, will lead to a new wave of demands by labor unions for wage raises, with strikes to enforce them.

For this prospect, blame is laid by Mr. Bowles and the administration on unwillingness of Congress to continue OPA in the form in which they want it. The same position is taken by the Congress of Industrial Organizations and its Political Action Committee. They claim that demands for wage raises and strikes to get them are justified by increased prices, and that future price increases will be the fault of Congress. Charges and recriminations about the cause of price increase will compose much of the heat of the coming Congressional campaign.

If we can't say whether the hen or the egg came first, we can at least separate the two, and see how, in concrete example, one produced the other. Six months ago the CIO union of steel workers struck for higher wages, and President Truman gave them one. Call that the chicken. Presidently that chicken laid an egg, higher prices for steel and goods made of steel.

In another case, look on the priority as reversed. Mr. John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers struck for a wage raise, and the administration granted one. Call that the egg. The egg, incubated in a government brooder, became a chicken in less than the twenty-one days nature requires. Growing lustily it is now a full-fledged chicken in the form of a forty-cent per ton increase in the price of soft coal. This chicken in turn will presently lay an egg in the form of higher prices for goods in the making of which coal is used as fuel. This with other eggs of the same kind is likely to become presently a flock of chickens, increased prices of goods of all kinds leading to demands for higher wages. This is the apprehension now troubling the administration and a good many of the rest of us.

Turned Out Naturally

In the beginning, a year ago, President Truman seemed to think he had found a breed of chickens that would not lay eggs; or if you prefer, eggs that would not hatch into chickens. He, or some within his administration, had a theory that there could be wage raises which would not lead to price increases.

There can be eggs that don't hatch, including china ones, though as a rule they are not highly appreciated. And there can be hens that don't lay eggs. But the administration's policy of wage raises turned out to have not only the normal fertility of chickens, but the fecundity of guinea pigs. Quickly and cumulatively great flocks of price increases overran the administration and the country. They ate up the seed of restoration of industry to peacetime production.

As things are today, practical wisdom calls on Congress to continue OPA, with limitations, but yet in a form President Truman will accept. Also, by that course Congress can protect itself from blame for whatever happens during the coming months.

Coming Depression Laid to Truman's Lack of Courage

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A belated drive to increase production has been begun by the Truman administration.

The drive will not succeed in its desired objective—to achieve a balanced economy—though it may, of course, to some degree augment the nation's output of scarce goods.

For the truth is the nation is headed toward the most severe economic depression in its history and the responsibiltiy for it will fall squarely on President Truman, whose mistakes since V-J day will cost the American people not only considerable unemployment but the hardships of inflation that could have been readily avoided. The controversy over keeping the OPA is just a propaganda smokescreen to hide the coming debate over who and what was responsible for the inevitable breakdown.

The president has added several billions of dollars to the cost of production recently by his increases in coal and in railroad wages. An increase in freight rates is coming if only to compensate the railroads for their increased costs in coal.

Worst of all, however, is the steady increase by OPA itself in prices which are the result of wage costs.

If the president had maintained wage control, the administration could have allowed wages to go up only as prices could be managed at the same time.

Pinch Will Come

The pinch will come and unemployment will become widespread as soon as a large part of the public finds itself unable to pay the high prices that must be charged if the new labor costs are to be absorbed. A so-called buyers' strike will usher in the new depression. It will come after some of the present shortages have been overcome and much of the pent-up demand is satisfied. Economists differ as to when this will happen but the uncertain period may begin sometime during the latter part of 1947.

The causes of the problem are simple. Wage increases have been or are being granted to organized unions involving about 14,000,000 persons. There are anywhere from 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 persons unorganized who work in white-collar jobs, agriculture, etc. These people with fixed incomes cannot afford to pay the new prices for goods. It really means they cannot pay the wage increases. Theoretically, the answer might be thought to be merely to increase production and bring prices down, which is an impossibility in many lines of business that have been saddled with the increases. There is no way, for instance, to increase the consumption of coal when oil and gas and other fuels are already competing. There is no way to increase to wartime levels the number of persons travelling on railroads when the airplane and bus and the auto are competing already for passenger business. And yet wartime wages are being paid.

Subsidy Not the Answer

The answer does not lie in subsidy by the government, which would mean higher and higher taxes taken from wages and salaries.

The answer does not lie alone in increased production, because there is a limit to the demand for goods due to wartime shortages and the question of what to do with surpluses will come up in a year or so and cause factories to shut down and unemployment to begin.

The answer does not lie in arguing about the OPA. Unless the president is willing at once to restore wage and salary stazilization and sign legislation curtailing strikes, the OPA might as well be abolished and a free market instituted. The sooner the public comes into contact with natural markets and the buyers' strike ensues, the sooner the reorganization of the American economy will be attained.

Mr. Truman had his chance when V-J day came to do what England did—to retain all war controls and stabilize the situation. But he yielded to pressure and started playing politics with the wage problem. He let wages go uncontrolled and tried to hold down prices and, of course, failed. Now the inevitable collision between buyers and sellers is threatened.

Rigid Controls Needed

The only way out of the dilemma is for rigid controls on both wages and prices and on work stoppages to be instituted at once — which President Truman lacks the courage to do. If he put on wage and salary control and ordered a regulation again like the "little steel" formula, white-collar workers could get increases in wages while organized workers were limited to increases already obtained under the formula. Then with purchasing power generally increased, business and industry could set for itself a program of quantity production that might conceivably reduce prices somewhat or at least arrest their upward rise. Likewise, plans could be laid for the sale of exportable surpluses.

Mr. Truman has the complete responsibility for what has happened because he has broken the price ceilings due to his political concessions to unions and he has ignored the "forgotten man" of the age—the white-collar worker and the farmer. They must pay the new prices caused by the acceptance of union wage demands ordered as a nation-wide policy by the Truman administration in its handling of the automotive, steel and coal industries and in railroad transportation.

Tulsa, Okla.,—Arrived in the oil capital of America and must admit the black gold really dominates this part of the country. In fact when a man gets sick in Tulsa they don't say his blood pressure is up . . . they report he has a very high-octane rating.

It is quite a sight watching the Indians on the streets here, this being practically in the middle of the Osage and Cherokee country. In fact, we had trouble with our delightful coloratura, Miss Carmene. She was practicing "Indian Love Call" in her hotel room and had three offers of marriage, including a completely furnished tepee, before she'd finished the first eight bars.

Tulsa has just gone through a forty-five day bread shortage, and it really got bad. In fact, about the twentieth day a baritone from Oklahoma City started to sing "Shortenin' Bread," and the first three rows climbed up on the stage and tried to butter him.

Mounting Fire Losses Are Cause for Concern

Crimes involving property and currency do not destroy national wealth but merely result in the interchange of wealth among individuals. Destruction of property by fire constitutes as real a loss of wealth to the nation as does loss of production because of strikes. The interchange of wealth through thievery and larceny in its many forms is bad enough today—in fact, it is a national scandal. But the increase in loss of wealth through fire is no less shocking.

Frank A. Christensen, president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, said recently that if the present rate of fire losses continues unchecked, the damage this year will exceed $600,000,000, and make 1946 more costly in this respect than the years of the great San Francisco and Chicago fires. He estimated the loss through fires of the last twelve months at nearly $500,000,000, adding that a large part of it could have been prevented.

"For eight years now this evidence of national carelessness and inattention has been growing at a faster rate every year," he said. "This devastating waste of preventable fire will have to be slowed down somewhere soon. We are a wealthy country, but no country, however rich, can escape the consequences of such a drain on vital living facilities."

Referring to the great loss of life in fires, he said that "The great tragedy of the more than 10,000 lives lost every year in fires is that a large number of those who perish are helpless children." He said an average of twenty-seven lives are lost in fires every day. The question of why fire losses are increasing so rapidly was discussed at the board's eightieth anniversary meeting at which spokesmen placed the blame chiefly on "war weariness." Responsibility was linked to the human element in terms of relaxed vigilance, and to the failure of such industrial and housing equipment as electrical wiring and heating apparatus.

While hope was seen in the wider adoption of approved building codes designed to reduce potential fire hazards in new housing and industrial structures, this was considered incidental to the need for an aroused public consciousness of the gravity of the situation.

Fires are lamentable at any time, but in this period of a great housing shortage and a deficient supply of building materials, they are indeed tragic. Families ousted from homes by fires find it difficult to obtain other quarters, as everyone else does. The more houses are destroyed by fire, the greater the housing shortage. Yet the loss in terms of property, great as it is, does not compare with the tremendous loss of human lives.

New Light on All-Night Restaurants' Popularity

Some persons go on "food benders" for relief from emotional frustration in the same way that others engage in alcoholic bouts, according to Dr. Louis H. Twyeffort, a Philadelphia psychiatrist.

Excessive eating, with consequent excessive weight, often can be traced to an emotional disorder, Dr. Twyeffort told a clinic session of the American College of Physicians. To show that such cases of extreme overweight may erroneously be diagnosed as due to a glandular disorder, he cited the case of a youth in his twenties who weighed 442 pounds as a result of excessive eating and who told the doctor: "All my life I have hidden my troubles behind a plate of food. If I had taken to alcohol instead I would have been dead long ago." That latter statement might be difficult to prove.

Dr. Twyeffort recalled that the youth on one occasion had gone on a four-hour spree at an all-night restaurant after he had fallen out with his girl friend. Under psychiatric treatment, the youthful roly-poly was enabled to cope with his emotional problems and "no longer had to regress to the more primitive ways of seeking sensory satisfaction." Taking off 100 pounds, the lad "subsequently made an excellent record in the merchant marine," Dr. Twyeffort reported.

This story casts a new light on the popularity of all-night restaurants and stirs speculation, too, about the possible number of frustrated patrons in a crowded roadside diner. Here, if anywhere, persons eat as if starved, yet it may be they are only love-starved. Does a train of hamburgers, dripping with ketchup, go further in making a man forget the pangs of unrequited love than a succession of double ryes or brandies?

Middle age, too, requires its compensations either in frustration or resignation, and the solace of eating seems to be fairly standard. But resultant overweight only adds to the burden and sense of futility. But in the months ahead adequate emotional relief will no longer be acquirable in this gustatory manner, judging from the daily bulletins on the food outlook.

Debt Is Constant Source of Misgiving

THE NATION'S $280,000,000,000 federal debt is a constant source of misgiving and will continue to be for years to come. Experts of the Federal Reserve Board have completed a study of the inflationary potentialities of the debt policy of the government and of the political dangers for commercial banks inherent in their high earning position brought about by large holdings of government bonds.

Interest on government bonds, it is declared, will soon more than cover all bank expenses. The experts wonder if the banks will effectively discharge their function as risk takers or whether they will prefer to leave the financing of business ventures largely to speculators. When the bulk of bank earnings comes from the most rickless of all securities, increased complacency seems a more probable outcome than increased venturesomeness.

Any increase in the public debt will expand the currency. Large redemption of government bonds would put currency in the hands of the public at a time when there is nothing to do with it except bid up the prices of scarce articles.

The conclusion is that the replacing of short term bonds by long term bonds, made attractive by higher rates of interest, would stabilize the situation until this country is able to begin reducing its towering obligation.

Saving the Redwoods In California

THE DAR and local California organizations are continuing their campaign for the preservation of the native redwood trees. The territory covered by these trees is immense and the project to save them involves the building of roads through the forests for motorists, whose increasing numbers magnify the work of the socities that are interested.

The main road through the redwoods now is a two-lane driveway, necessarily circuitous in order to avoid the trees that would have to be removed to provide a straight route through the woods. A four-lane way has now been proposed and responsible people who are back of the enterprise are considering whether this ought to be done, or whether some alternative may be devised to save the trees that would have to be sacrificed if the width of the roadway were increased.

Perhaps two one-way roads might be the solution. But, at any rate, the forests should be preserved.

Those who are looking for signs of normalcy are greatly encouraged by news that a flagpole sitter is on the job in an Ohio city.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Most of us have long given thought to that famous sentence: "Trifles make perfection—and perfection is no trifle." I was impressed with this line when reading a book about Lafcadio Hearn. Few writers in all literature have taken such pains in their expression of thoughts.

Noguchi, Hearn's friend in Japan, once said of him: "Writing was for him no light work; he wrote with his life and blood."

A friend wrote Hearn in admiration for a paragraph in his book "Kotto," which read as follows: "Then let me hope that the state to which I am destined will not be worse than that of a cicada or of a dragon-fly:—climbing the cryptomerias to clash my tiny cymbals in the sun or haunting the holy silence of lotus pools with a soundless flicker of amethyst and gold."

Hearn replied to his friend that he had rewritten that paragraph 17 times before he was able "to express to his own satisfaction the impression in his mind." Hearn died in Japan in 1904. Increasingly, each year, does his fame as a literary stylist increase, and his books will be read so long as beauty of style and exactness of expression shall live. Any enthusiast of Hearn's will readily agree with this statement. His exactness of expression and his love of beauty place his writings among the treasures of literature.

It is the regret of us all that Thomas Wolfe did not live to pour out his life-blood into even greater books than those few which he completed during his brief period of life, for he, too, was a writer who wrote "with his life and blood."

Who would even attempt to change a single word in Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg Address? Yet no one dreams that he sought for perfection of style when he wrote and delivered it. The striving for perfection lay hidden in his desire for a perfect expression from his heart on so solemn an occasion.

Words that live and deeds that never die in their influence have their birth in the heart. Said that bricklayer, when interrogated as to what he was doing, "I am building a Cathedral!"

Wilkinson Advertisement Meets with Opposition

Editor The Cumberland News:

May I refer please to an article by Mr. C. N. "Jerry" Wilkinson in the Sunday Times of June 16, 1946, wherein as the closing paragraph of a paid political advertisement he made the following statement:

Quote: "I pledge myself to clean government, administered by upright, untarnished people, and I will use all my efforts against everything else."

Untarnish is the reverse of tarnish and as he promises an untarnished administration, it is evident that all of those in any present official capacity are tarnished.

Before proceeding with a subject of such vital importance, permit me to quote the dictionary on the definition of the word "tarnished" which is defined as meaning "to stain or disgrace, hence a blemish".

It is quite true that such an article (probably ghost written) did not infer such a reference but the implication is there nevertheless, thus the penalty one pays for loose wording of statements using terms without reference to their literal meaning. The inference therefor casts a reflection and cloud upon the integrity and honesty of every county employee and appointee.

It is regrettable that Mr. Wilkinson elects to resort to a smear campaign that not only effects other candidates but every employe of the county. It even invades the sanctum of his home and involves his family regardless of his political views.

The implication is obviously an attack upon those who value a reputation, something that even a politician cannot remove. Those of us, servants of the public, are subject to errors of ommission but not errors of commission as we stand accused. It is indeed poor recompense for a man who is interested in his work in an endeavor to give value received in return for his effort and his ability to perform the required duties of his office.

So vent your speen, Mr. Wilkinson, and direct it to those to whom you refer for the sake of common decency.

Signed.

"IRON MAIDEN OF NUREMBERG"

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, June 19—The British foreign office is quaking in its boots for fear a secret report on Gen. Mihailovic written by British intelligence in 1944 will be brought to light during the trial of the Chetnik leader. The report shows that the British knew all along that Mihailovic was collaborating with the enemy.

"Today (September, 1944)," states the British intelligence report, "they (the Chetniks) are to be found almost everywhere fighting alongside German and satellite troops, but they still profess to be pro-Allied at heart."

British intelligence went on to explain that they believed Mihailovic to be sincerely anti-German, but that he considered Tito's partisans more dangerous to the Yugoslavia monarchy than the Axis.

"Once he had made this decision," British intelligence states, Mihailovic was irrevocably committed to the path of collaboration. Nowhere were his forces strong enough to remain hostile to the Germans and the quisling regimes and yet defeat the partisans. . . .

Regarded as "Traitor"

"Though believing himself a patriot, he (Mihailovic) was regarded by most of his countrymen as a traitor. All this was the inevitable result of his decision to regard the partisans rather than the Germans as the main enemy. . . .

"The present alignment of Chetnik forces on the side of the Germans today is neither accidental nor remediable. It is inherent in the very nature of the Chetnik standpoint. To hope to 'reform' or 'galvanize' the Chetnik organization into anti-Axis activity is to misunderstand its very essence. The Chetniks are not so much the adherents of a clear-cut political programme as the product of a psychological state of mind—the frustration, confusion and resentment resulting from the sudden collapse of the state.

"To look for any prominent leaders or elements within Mihailovic's Chetnik organization as uncompromised by collaboration or with a consistent record of anti-Axis action behind them is an illusion. None such exists. The Chetnik rank and file may have been misled and still be potentially capable of action within the partisan forces, but their leaders have contributed nothing to the record of Yugoslavia's heroic three years' resistance, nor can they be expected to contribute anything to her approaching resurgence," British intelligence concluded.

Mailman Sullivan

Two little attention is paid in this political-ridden capital to the quiet, unassuming officials who consistently do a bang-up job.

One of them is Assistant Postmaster General Gael Sullivan. Coming from Chicago and trained under Mayor Ed Kelly, Sullivan at first looked like a pure political appointee. In six months, however, he has become one of the most effective members of the little cabinet.

On July 1, Sullivan will see one of his dreams come true—when regularly scheduled helicopter mail deliveries will begin in the Los Angeles area. Sullivan is also experimenting with jet planes and rockets for swifter mail services, hopes to have twelve-hour mail service between any two communities in the U. S. A. He is also working on a plan for shipping all first-class mail by air at any time Congress gives him the green light. Three-cent air mail, he believes, is not only possible, but practical.

Sullivan is one bureaucrat who is really underpaid. Any morning you can find him at his desk by 7:30 a. m., and he never leaves before 8 p. m. When you add up the hours Sullivan puts in on his job and the pay he receives, his hourly wage is less than that of Philadelphia garbage collectors.

Adm. Hart Forgets

Some military leaders have short memories—especially when the question of army-navy unification is being debated.

The other day, Adm. Tommy Hart, now a senator from Connecticut, delivered himself quite an oration, telling other senators what a foul, iniquitous, unworkable, impossible thing unification is. The idea of unifyng the army and navy, he said, is out of the question.

However, the admiral apparently had forgotten his own experiences in the Pacific war and what he wrote about them. After he was relieved from command following a series of disastrous defeats, Adm. Hart wrote some articles for the Saturday Evening Post in which he came out strong for unified command.

For instance, here is what he wrote about the United States landing in the Solomon islands, at the time he was an admiral, not a senator:

"The unified command principle—commanders who are supreme in their respective theatres—which is already a feature of this war, will no doubt obtain. The idea has been found correct while we were on the defensive in the Pacific, and it seems absolutely essential in offensive amphibious war."

Again, here is what Adm. Hart wrote about the splendid unified command of the Japs when they mopped up the British at Singapore and Malaya:

"The RAF had a considerable force on Malaya, within easy flying range of the sea area where it all happened. The British battleships received no aid from the RAF, either in reconnaissance or in defense by fighter planes against the Jap air attack which resulted in the loss of the Repulse and Prince of Wales and their commander.

"We have never heard why the RAF fighters, which were half an hour away, gave Adm. Phillips no help whatever. The British way does not look good for our purposes.

"The history of the campaign is well enough known, and it seems necessary only to repeat that the Japs showed up an example in which troops, ships and aircraft were splendidly co-ordinated, both in plan and execution.

"Now, in the face of the record, if we are going to copy foreign institutions, whom should we copy? Shall it be our British friends, or our Japanese enemies—themselves the world's most renowned copyists, if you will?"

With the heat of battle over, however, and Adm. Hart now a senator, he has reverted to the old peacetime tradition of army-navy rivalry.

Capital Chaff

Both the Chinese nationalists and the Chinese Communists are bursting to learn what's in the script for "The Life of Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen," movie to be made by Producer Lester Cowan. Perhaps Gen. Marshall could use oriental curiosity to persuade both sides to get together . . . Assistant Secretary of the Navy John Kenny is the latest to knife President Truman's atomic control policy. Kenny testified on Capitol Hill that he was personally in favor of giving the military greater control over atomic energy—which was directly contrary to his commander-in-chief . . . British tories are urging ex-Prime Minister Winston Churchill to resign as tory leader of Commons and devote himself solely to writing his memoirs. They seem to feel he can be more useful in private life.

Sullivan Compares Wages and Prices To Hen and Egg

By MARK SULLIVAN

Very shortly, the country's top domestic problem is going to be put before us in the form of that eternal and inconclusive controversy — which came first, the hen or the egg. The egg is wages and strikes, the hen is prices and the Office of Price Administration; or vice versa as you choose. The argument over priority will figure large in the coming Congressional campaign, probably dominate it.

The bill extending OPA, but at the same time limiting it, is now in conference between House and Senate committees. These will produce a common version, which presumably will be adopted by both chambers. Thereupon President Truman will make a choice. Either he will accept the limitations put upon OPA by Congress, and sign the bill; or he will veto the bill, on the ground that the limitations go so far as to make OPA ineffective. The first course is the more likely.

The outcome must appear by June 30. On that day the present OPA expires. Whatever the outcome, it is certain to be less than is wanted by OPA and the administration. Thereupon the argument will begin.

Sees More Strikes

Officials responsible for OPA, particularly Mr. Chester Bowles, are already voicing their side. They are saying that expiration of OPA, or continuation of it in any form Congress seems willing to adopt, will lead to soaring increases in prices, higher cost of living. This in turn, it is asserted, will lead to a new wave of demands by labor unions for wage raises, with strikes to enforce them.

For this prospect, blame is laid by Mr. Bowles and the administration on unwillingness of Congress to continue OPA in the form in which they want it. The same position is taken by the Congress of Industrial Organizations and its Political Action Committee. They claim that demands for wage raises and strikes to get them are justified by increased prices, and that future price increases will be the fault of Congress. Charges and recriminations about the cause of price increase will compose much of the heat of the coming Congressional campaign.

If we can't say whether the hen or the egg came first, we can at least separate the two, and see how, in concrete example, one produced the other. Six months ago the CIO union of steel workers struck for higher wages, and President Truman gave them one. Call that the chicken. Presidently that chicken laid an egg, higher prices for steel and goods made of steel.

In another case, look on the priority as reversed. Mr. John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers struck for a wage raise, and the administration granted one. Call that the egg. The egg, incubated in a government brooder, became a chicken in less than the twenty-one days nature requires. Growing lustily it is now a full-fledged chicken in the form of a forty-cent per ton increase in the price of soft coal. This chicken in turn will presently lay an egg in the form of higher prices for goods in the making of which coal is used as fuel. This with other eggs of the same kind is likely to become presently a flock of chickens, increased prices of goods of all kinds leading to demands for higher wages. This is the apprehension now troubling the administration and a good many of the rest of us.

Turned Out Naturally

In the beginning, a year ago, President Truman seemed to think he had found a breed of chickens that would not lay eggs; or if you prefer, eggs that would not hatch into chickens. He, or some within his administration, had a theory that there could be wage raises which would not lead to price increases.

There can be eggs that don't hatch, including china ones, though as a rule they are not highly appreciated. And there can be hens that don't lay eggs. But the administration's policy of wage raises turned out to have not only the normal fertility of chickens, but the fecundity of guinea pigs. Quickly and cumulatively great flocks of price increases overran the administration and the country. They ate up the seed of restoration of industry to peacetime production.

As things are today, practical wisdom calls on Congress to continue OPA, with limitations, but yet in a form President Truman will accept. Also, by that course Congress can protect itself from blame for whatever happens during the coming months.

Coming Depression Laid to Truman's Lack of Courage

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A belated drive to increase production has been begun by the Truman administration.

The drive will not succeed in its desired objective—to achieve a balanced economy—though it may, of course, to some degree augment the nation's output of scarce goods.

For the truth is the nation is headed toward the most severe economic depression in its history and the responsibiltiy for it will fall squarely on President Truman, whose mistakes since V-J day will cost the American people not only considerable unemployment but the hardships of inflation that could have been readily avoided. The controversy over keeping the OPA is just a propaganda smokescreen to hide the coming debate over who and what was responsible for the inevitable breakdown.

The president has added several billions of dollars to the cost of production recently by his increases in coal and in railroad wages. An increase in freight rates is coming if only to compensate the railroads for their increased costs in coal.

Worst of all, however, is the steady increase by OPA itself in prices which are the result of wage costs.

If the president had maintained wage control, the administration could have allowed wages to go up only as prices could be managed at the same time.

Pinch Will Come

The pinch will come and unemployment will become widespread as soon as a large part of the public finds itself unable to pay the high prices that must be charged if the new labor costs are to be absorbed. A so-called buyers' strike will usher in the new depression. It will come after some of the present shortages have been overcome and much of the pent-up demand is satisfied. Economists differ as to when this will happen but the uncertain period may begin sometime during the latter part of 1947.

The causes of the problem are simple. Wage increases have been or are being granted to organized unions involving about 14,000,000 persons. There are anywhere from 35,000,000 to 40,000,000 persons unorganized who work in white-collar jobs, agriculture, etc. These people with fixed incomes cannot afford to pay the new prices for goods. It really means they cannot pay the wage increases. Theoretically, the answer might be thought to be merely to increase production and bring prices down, which is an impossibility in many lines of business that have been saddled with the increases. There is no way, for instance, to increase the consumption of coal when oil and gas and other fuels are already competing. There is no way to increase to wartime levels the number of persons travelling on railroads when the airplane and bus and the auto are competing already for passenger business. And yet wartime wages are being paid.

Subsidy Not the Answer

The answer does not lie in subsidy by the government, which would mean higher and higher taxes taken from wages and salaries.

The answer does not lie alone in increased production, because there is a limit to the demand for goods due to wartime shortages and the question of what to do with surpluses will come up in a year or so and cause factories to shut down and unemployment to begin.

The answer does not lie in arguing about the OPA. Unless the president is willing at once to restore wage and salary stazilization and sign legislation curtailing strikes, the OPA might as well be abolished and a free market instituted. The sooner the public comes into contact with natural markets and the buyers' strike ensues, the sooner the reorganization of the American economy will be attained.

Mr. Truman had his chance when V-J day came to do what England did—to retain all war controls and stabilize the situation. But he yielded to pressure and started playing politics with the wage problem. He let wages go uncontrolled and tried to hold down prices and, of course, failed. Now the inevitable collision between buyers and sellers is threatened.

Rigid Controls Needed

The only way out of the dilemma is for rigid controls on both wages and prices and on work stoppages to be instituted at once — which President Truman lacks the courage to do. If he put on wage and salary control and ordered a regulation again like the "little steel" formula, white-collar workers could get increases in wages while organized workers were limited to increases already obtained under the formula. Then with purchasing power generally increased, business and industry could set for itself a program of quantity production that might conceivably reduce prices somewhat or at least arrest their upward rise. Likewise, plans could be laid for the sale of exportable surpluses.

Mr. Truman has the complete responsibility for what has happened because he has broken the price ceilings due to his political concessions to unions and he has ignored the "forgotten man" of the age—the white-collar worker and the farmer. They must pay the new prices caused by the acceptance of union wage demands ordered as a nation-wide policy by the Truman administration in its handling of the automotive, steel and coal industries and in railroad transportation.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Tulsa, Okla.,—Arrived in the oil capital of America and must admit the black gold really dominates this part of the country. In fact when a man gets sick in Tulsa they don't say his blood pressure is up . . . they report he has a very high-octane rating.

It is quite a sight watching the Indians on the streets here, this being practically in the middle of the Osage and Cherokee country. In fact, we had trouble with our delightful coloratura, Miss Carmene. She was practicing "Indian Love Call" in her hotel room and had three offers of marriage, including a completely furnished tepee, before she'd finished the first eight bars.

Tulsa has just gone through a forty-five day bread shortage, and it really got bad. In fact, about the twentieth day a baritone from Oklahoma City started to sing "Shortenin' Bread," and the first three rows climbed up on the stage and tried to butter him.

Youth Who Does As He Pleases Is Worry to Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What can I tell a son who thinks because he is 21 years old he can do as he pleases without consulting his parents?

While he is under my roof, have I not the right to know when and where and with whom he is going? He says that is babying him.

I have four other sons, and they have never taken this attitude. I feel he must be influenced by his companions, or I have failed, somehow, as a mother.

WORRIED MOTHER

You give me so few details about your son's behavior that it is rather difficult to tell which of you is at fault. You could be, you know, because I do not think it necessarily follows that just because he is still under your roof you have a right to know all the details of his activities. It is perfectly possible that he may be right, and you are babying him. Your other sons may be more easygoing and less independent than he is, and not feel that their rights are infringed on by your wanting to know where they are and what they are doing at all times. Which is perfectly all right, if they feel that way, but because their attitude is different, it does not make your 21-year-old son necessarily wrong in his. It seems to me that, at his age, you should be able to trust him not to go anywhere or do anything that you would not approve, and let it go at that.

On his side, no doubt he might be a little more courteous and tell you more, occasionally, about his friends and interests. If you lend a willing ear when he feels inclined to do so, and don't demand it as your right when he doesn't, I think you'll find things go better.

Don't Be Impatient

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am very deeply in love, and my boy friend says he loves me.

His friends say he has not the courage to kiss me. He has taken me out several times, yet has not offered to kiss me. Should I ask him to kiss me, or shall we go on like we are?

H.W.

Half the girls who write me complain that men expect too many kisses too soon, and the other half complain because their boy friends are so slow about kissing!

It's my idea that the boys who take their time about getting to the kissing stage are the ones to count on. At least you know they don't take such things lightly, and you ought to find that very reassuring, don't you think? When they do get to it, it's likely that they really mean it.

So don't be impatient about being kissed. And I don't think I'd ask to be kissed, either. Wait until it comes about naturally. Just go on being friendly and sweet, and one of these days, if the boy friend really does love you, you may be sure he'll find the courage to kiss you. And you'll like it much better if it was his idea than if he did it because you asked him to.

Scattered Rails and Industrials Achieve Modest Market Comebacks

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Scattered rails and industrials achieved modest comebacks in today's stock market while numerous leaders extended their retreat.

Boardrooms were more or less bearish because of the recent refusal of the list, as a whole, to follow the carriers on their climb to the highest level since 1931. Doubts regarding price control legislation also inspired some further liquidation. Persistent hopes for a freight rate boost propped some of the transportation group and a little bidding was based on the thought that Tuesday's tumble may have been overdone.

Transfers of 1,010,000 shares compared with 1,150,000 the day before.

Of 956 issues registering, 573 declined and 212 advanced.

On the offside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Northern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Ahead were Gimbel, Douglas Aircraft, Dow Chemical, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Electric Power and Light, North American and Union Carbide.

In the Curb, Apex Electrical dipped three and one-half points to $39 in the wake of a deferred dividend. Northern States Power "A" fell four and one-fourth at $60.50. Improved were Electric Bond and Share, Barium Steel and Crowley Milner. Turnover here was 370,000 shares versus 500,000 yesterday.

A late rally in the bond market helped to wipe out losses incurred earlier. At the finish prices were thoroughly mixed.

Fractionally up were Baltimore and Ohio convertibles at 75¼. Lower were Western Maryland 4s at 109¼.

United States governments dipped one-thirty-second to two thirty-seconds of a point in the over-the-counter market.

Turnover of $3,740,000, lowest in more than a week, compared with $4,003,000 Tuesday.

Scattered Rails and Industrials Achieve Modest Market Comebacks

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Scattered rails and industrials achieved modest comebacks in today's stock market while numerous leaders extended their retreat.

Boardrooms were more or less bearish because of the recent refusal of the list, as a whole, to follow the carriers on their climb to the highest level since 1931. Doubts regarding price control legislation also inspired some further liquidation. Persistent hopes for a freight rate boost propped some of the transportation group and a little bidding was based on the thought that Tuesday's tumble may have been overdone.

Transfers of 1,010,000 shares compared with 1,150,000 the day before.

Of 956 issues registering, 573 declined and 212 advanced.

On the offside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Westinghouse, General Electric, Northern Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Ahead were Gimbel, Douglas Aircraft, Dow Chemical, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Electric Power and Light, North American and Union Carbide.

In the Curb, Apex Electrical dipped three and one-half points to $39 in the wake of a deferred dividend. Northern States Power "A" fell four and one-fourth at $60.50. Improved were Electric Bond and Share, Barium Steel and Crowley Milner. Turnover here was 370,000 shares versus 500,000 yesterday.

A late rally in the bond market helped to wipe out losses incurred earlier. At the finish prices were thoroughly mixed.

Fractionally up were Baltimore and Ohio convertibles at 75¼. Lower were Western Maryland 4s at 109¼.

United States governments dipped one-thirty-second to two thirty-seconds of a point in the over-the-counter market.

Turnover of $3,740,000, lowest in more than a week, compared with $4,003,000 Tuesday.

THE DOME

It was night when I drove up Pennsylvania avenue toward the capitol, years ago. A nasty night—harsh wind—a lather of scudding rain mixed with sleet. The lights were dimmed—the wide street became a dark tunnel, lined with mean, huddled houses. People, struggling home against the storm, were meaningless, weak blots.

Only the capitol dome, looming ahead at the end of the long drive, seemed strong and secure. Batteries of light played upon it, turning its stone to alabaster. Vast, radiant, it rose above the squalor of the street, above the darkness of the storm, up into the heavens. For a moment the clouds parted. The sky opened, deeply blue, studded with stars, and against the blue the great dome shone, white and steadfast.

And I saw what I so often fail to see . . . THAT THERE IS SOMETHING IN LIFE WHICH STANDS SECURE ABOVE ALL STORM AND DARKNESS.

There is a dream in all lives that is like that dome. Always we long for something stronger than our weakness, taller than our littleness, whiter than our sordidness. In every heart there is that dream. You may look where you will—in the roughest camps, in the smartest homes, in the hoboes' "jungle," in bread lines and brothels in penitentiaries and slums—in every heart, wherever you may find it, there is a dream.

And because that dream is in our personal lives we have built it into our national life. We are a young people, a silly people, a greedy, stubborn, conceited, ignorant people. We build shabbily. We struggle weakly in storms which we bring upon ourselves. Yet, in spite of our pettiness and folly, WE BUILT THAT DOME.

We built that dome because the dream that is within us is like that dome. We commit injustice, but we dream of justice. We are weak, but we dream of strength. We are dishonest, but we dream of honor. And we have built our dream into a dome to stand at the head of our nation.

High it stands, strong and serene above our confusion, lit by our common hope. About it open the infinite years to come.

Above it blaze the everlasting stars. We go so quickly we will never touch those stars. But our dream will last through the years—and blaze with the stars.

STORMS MAY COME AND STORMS MAY GO—BUT THE DREAM THAT IS AMERICA WILL NOT PASS WITH THE STORMS —IT WILL GO ON AND ON, SHINING THROUGH THE NIGHT.

THE DOME

It was night when I drove up Pennsylvania avenue toward the capitol, years ago. A nasty night—harsh wind—a lather of scudding rain mixed with sleet. The lights were dimmed—the wide street became a dark tunnel, lined with mean, huddled houses. People, struggling home against the storm, were meaningless, weak blots.

Only the capitol dome, looming ahead at the end of the long drive, seemed strong and secure. Batteries of light played upon it, turning its stone to alabaster. Vast, radiant, it rose above the squalor of the street, above the darkness of the storm, up into the heavens. For a moment the clouds parted. The sky opened, deeply blue, studded with stars, and against the blue the great dome shone, white and steadfast.

And I saw what I so often fail to see . . . THAT THERE IS SOMETHING IN LIFE WHICH STANDS SECURE ABOVE ALL STORM AND DARKNESS.

There is a dream in all lives that is like that dome. Always we long for something stronger than our weakness, taller than our littleness, whiter than our sordidness. In every heart there is that dream. You may look where you will—in the roughest camps, in the smartest homes, in the hoboes' "jungle," in bread lines and brothels in penitentiaries and slums—in every heart, wherever you may find it, there is a dream.

And because that dream is in our personal lives we have built it into our national life. We are a young people, a silly people, a greedy, stubborn, conceited, ignorant people. We build shabbily. We struggle weakly in storms which we bring upon ourselves. Yet, in spite of our pettiness and folly, WE BUILT THAT DOME.

We built that dome because the dream that is within us is like that dome. We commit injustice, but we dream of justice. We are weak, but we dream of strength. We are dishonest, but we dream of honor. And we have built our dream into a dome to stand at the head of our nation.

High it stands, strong and serene above our confusion, lit by our common hope. About it open the infinite years to come.

Above it blaze the everlasting stars. We go so quickly we will never touch those stars. But our dream will last through the years—and blaze with the stars.

STORMS MAY COME AND STORMS MAY GO—BUT THE DREAM THAT IS AMERICA WILL NOT PASS WITH THE STORMS—IT WILL GO ON AND ON, SHINING THROUGH THE NIGHT.

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, June 19 — The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth McLane, eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. O. McLane, this city, to Robert L. Powers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Powers, 12 First street, was solemnized this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Michael's Catholic church, with the Rev. Joseph A. Weber, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, Indian Head, Md., and a personal friend of the McLane family, performing the ceremony and celebrating the solemn high nuptial mass.

The Rev. Patrick J. Bradley, pastor; the Rev. Francis E. Montgamery, administrator, and the Rev. Regis Larkin, assistant pastor, were in the sanctuary. The mass was served by James Conway and William Charles McLane, brother of the bride, as altar boys.

During the marriage ceremony, Mrs. Giles Maurey sang "Mother at Thy Feet Is Kneeling," Schubert's "Ave Maria," "Thee Our Father," Frank's "Panis Angelicus" and Barnby's "Oh Perfect Love," with Mrs. Richard Goldsworthy playing the organ accompaniments and the traditional wedding marches.

The maid of honor was Miss Jane McLane, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Beth Ann Murphy, Scarsdale, N. Y.; Miss Joan Moffett, Rockville Center, N. Y.; Miss Betty Rodie, Ridgefield Park, N. J, and Miss Rosalie Mason, Cresaptown. The best man was John Pettit, this city; the ushers were Miller Bowen, Mt. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor length gown of white satin designed with a scalloped basque with a yoke of regency lace and marquisette. The long full skirt was of marquisette over satin and the long sleeves came to a point over the back of the wrists. Her fingertip veil was of illusion tulle caught at the head with a halo of seed pearls of orange blossom design. She carried a large shower bouquet of white roses and baby's-breath.

The maid of honor wore a long gown of maize net over taffeta with a skirt of net ruffle trim. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's-breath and wore a tiara of maize net and flowers.

They carried nosegays of old fashioned flowers. Miss Mason and Miss Moffett wore nile and Miss Rodie and Miss Murphy wore orchid. Their net tiaras, caught at the head with roses, were the same shades as their gowns.

There were about sixty-five guests. At the bride's table a large three tier wedding cake was cut by the bride and bridegroom with a Japanese sword. Scrubbed and painted, there was no trace of the blasting from six aerial torpedoes and two 500-pound bombs that sent her to the bottom of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941.

"I regret the necessity for having had to help inactivate a battleship with such an honorable name and record as the West Virginia," said Comdr. Richard S. Andrews, Santa Fe, N. M., skipper of the ship, in a prepared address.

Murderous Left

counted the same full ten. Billy had barely stirred when he finished. He could have counted another ten. At two minutes, nineteen seconds of the eighth the roof fell in.

For Billy it was for keeps. Immediately afterward in his dressing room, he admitted it.

"I'm Through," Conn Says

"This is my last fight," he said. "I'm through. I just haven't got it."

For Louis it was the last fight at least until 1947. He had planned to try another one in September, but there is no challenger left ready to try trading anything but golf shots with him—and there are few of those, inasmuch as he's down in the low 70's now.

What's more, his income tax from his estimated "cut" of some $577,700 from a gate officially announced as $1,925,564 for this fight puts him well into the upper brackets, with no financial point in plying his trade again this year. Louis's "end" figured to be about $289,000.

In his dressing room, he was the same calm, quiet-speaking Joe who came out of the Alabama cotton fields by way of Detroit and soared up the trail to a spot not only as the greatest fistic destroyer of his generation, but one of the best-liked ever to put on a pair of gloves.

Describes Winning Punches

"I finished him with a right cross, a right upper-cut and a left hook," he explained, in reply to a question.

"Conn was slower than the last time," he added. "I told Manny (Trainer Manny Seamon) just before the eight round that I was going to fight him this round just to see what he'd do."

Someone asked then if it was his easiest fight. "Seems to me," he tossed off, "I remember a guy named Levinsky." This was King Levinsky of Chicago who barely waited to be hit before admitting the Bomber was the better man some years back.

Thus ended the most ballyhooed and anticipated classic that ring history has ever known, and once more the ancient jinx of a New York ball park—that a challenger has never won a title in one of them—held good.

Five years ago, they fought the last time. The great Negro champion put his crown up twice after that, early in 1942, in the most gallant pair of gestures any champion has ever made—giving his entire purse once to army emergency relief, and once to navy relief.

Then both went into the army and through four years entertained troops with hundreds of exhibitions and thousands of rounds in this country and overseas. Both came out just as they went in—plain GI's—asking and getting no favors. Once they were willing to fight tonight's battle for nothing except payment of a comparatively small amount of debts owed, but the War department couldn't see the idea. So it was put off until tonight.

The boys and girls came from all over the world to see Joe set off the same kind of explosives that the New York Yankee "Murderers' Row" of baseball used to fire on this same field when they were the fear of the American League.

It fell short of the $3,000,000 gate Promoter Mike Jacobs anticipated originally with his all time high charge of $100 per ringside seat. And it was well under the record $2,658,660 "take" that Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney lured into Soldier Field, Chicago, nineteen years ago.

650 Writers See Bout

But it went up into the select set as the ninth million-dollar gate in fistic history—the first since 1938 when Louis avenged the only defeat of his career by practically annihilating Max Schmeling.

And it attracted the largest outpouring of sports writers in ring history. They came from all over the world, some 650 of them, from Australia, Africa, Honolulu, Europe and North and South America.

The fans followed them too, and the ringside was well decorated tonight with leaders from all walks of life, the theater, sports, movies, business and just plain gus fan and the missus. Barney Baruch, America's elder statesman, was at ringside, and Andrei Gromyko and more of the United Nations delegates.

They turned out in cloudy weather but an otherwise cool, late spring evening that brought out the minks and the silver foxes and a few scattered topcoats to stand off the breezes and a momentary sprinkle three hours before the Negro, sporting a 25-pound weight advantage, and his boyish-faced challenger climbed into the ring.

Both had "hit the button" with their expected weights—Joe at 207 and Billy at 182, and their conditions were remarkable for a 32-year-old champion, and 28-year-old challenger, four years away from their business.

For a while there was not much to it after the opening bell. Louis stalked and stalked. Billy circled and boxed and danced from side to side and backward—far different than their last collision when he carried the fight to Joe and befuddled the bomber with swift moves and unexpected shifts.

Billy Takes Early Lead

Billy had the better of two of the first three rounds on all Associated Press score card, but after the third, it was Joe all the way.

There is no doubt he was far slower than he was five years ago—in his legs, that is. His hands still moved out with the swiftness of rockets fired from a P-38.

Less than ten punches were landed in the first round, and Conn did most of whatever landing there was, as both concentrated on jabbing, virtually exclusively. Conn's left hand spear connected several times, but after the bell ended the heat, the crowd booed the lack of fireworks.

In the second, Billy landed the single hardest blow, leaping in with a swinging right and catching Joe off guard momentarily. The clout left a dull red mark under the Bomber's left eye, but before the session ended, he stuck out three hard left jabs that reddened Conn's face. And he fired one short right, his first up to then.

Conn's straight left hand lances piled up the most points in the third. And, midway of the heat, he suddenly lunged in again with his favorite blow—a combined pair of hooks to head and body thrown with virtually one motion. It made Joe blink, just for half an instant, or maybe the lights were in the champion's eyes.

Tries To Corner Conn

But from the start of the fourth on, Joe's strategy became obvious. He was content to stalk Billy, trying to corner him, intent on maneuvering this dancing threat to his reign into the opening for just one of his blasting barrages.

In the fourth he did get Billy into one corner and slashed Conn's ribs with two rights, then fired a left-right to the head before the Smokytown boxing ace fought his way out of trouble. Then for awhile, Joe continued to jab and jab and jab some more, and Conn's face was scarleted now from the straight spear-like blows.

In the fifth, Joe tried a leaping right that connected, but did little damage. Once he caught Billy against the ropes and fired left and right and later, in a corner, pummeled Billy's body.

The sixth was a jabbing session again with both reaching out and sticking away. Late in the round, Joe let go a digging hook for the mid-section and in going away from the punch, Billy slipped to one knee. Joe stepped back until he got to his feet, and the crowd cheered the gesture.

Slams Joe in Mouth

The pace stepped up in the seventh because Billy moved in a bit more. Suddenly he jumped into close range and smashed a hard hook off Joe's mouth that Louis didn't like a bit, but the champion jabbed and hooked and stalked—still waiting.

That hook was just about Conn's last offensive gesture. He jabbed a few times early in the eighth, but Joe had made up his mind he was "going to fight him" now. He worked Billy up close to the ropes on the west side of the ring, nearest the grandstand. Finally, he had his man in position. Then he let him have it. The lights went out and the birdies sang for Billy—but Billy couldn't tell if it was dark or if it was music.

into the Holy Land. His flight from Paris came at a time when representatives of the Arab states were discussing methods of opposing the British-American inquiry committee's recommendation for the immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine this year.

He is regarded as a shrewd, aggressive leader who might play an important part in Arab strategy if Britain and the United States should attempt to carry out the inquiry committee's recommendations.

King Farouk has advised the British government of the mufti's appearance in Egypt and of his decision to grant sanctuary, the informant said.

employes—have been used in behalf of Mr. Tawes and his ticket." On this point, Lane did not elaborate.

"The Tawes headquarters has been using Mr. Elgin as the hatchet man," Lane asserted. "He is their chairman and he has been picked to issue statements derogatory to me, my running mates and our discussion of the issues of this campaign."

Baldwin's remarks were made in the course of a rally last night at Holy Cross hall. He said, in part:

"When an individual can, by spending huge sums, become elected to office, men of modest means are precluded, regardless of ability or principles, from ever holding public office in this state.

"Mr. Lane x x x is spending huge sums by publishing advertisements so expensive that each one represents nearly half the annual salary of the governor of Maryland. x x x

"I think, if the truth can be ascertained when this campaign is over, it will be shown that Mr. Lane is spending more money than has ever been spent by any candidate for public office in this state before. A great many people believe it will reach scandalous proportions."

Referring to the "platitude" platform, Baldwin called upon Lane to "tell the people of Maryland what kind of tax he is going to impose on them to give all these additional services while reducing the real estate tax."

Baldwin also told the rally that he proposed to deliver a speech, before the campaign ends, on the public service commission, which regulates utility rates in the state. He added:

"I want to say to you here and now that if I am elected governor, the public service commission I appoint will not be controlled by utility lawyers."

Arthur H. Brice, a member of this commission and a Democratic leader in Kent county, recently withdrew his support of the Baldwin candidacy and joined the Lane forces.

In the Democratic senatorial contest today, a supporter of the incumbent, Sen. George L. Radcliffe, declared that Gov. O'Conor, Radcliffe's opponent, blocked legislation to reduce the voting age in Maryland and give the franchise to 18-year-old soldiers.

William Heinekamp, a former member of the House of Delegates, said O'Conor permitted the killing of a bill which would have let voters pass upon a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age. He said the governor used his influence in the legislature to prevent the bill's being brought to a vote.

Radcliffe, meanwhile, received the indorsement of Dr. Charles H. Conley, Western Maryland Democratic leader, who ran against Gov. Ritchie in 1934. Conley also announced he would back Tawes for governor.

The first point would bind the contracting parties to the following obligations:

"(A) Not to use, in any circumstances, an atomic weapon;

"(B) To forbid the production and keeping of a weapon based upon the use of atomic energy;

"(C) To destroy within a period of three months from the entry into force of this agreement all stocks of atomic energy weapons whether in a finished or semi-finished condition."

Two Committees

The agreement would be open to signatures by all states whether or not they are members of the United Nations.

The proposal said the agreement would come into force after approval by the Security council and after ratification by half of those states eligible to sign.

On the matter of control, Russia proposed the creation of two committees to study the control of atomic development for peaceful use.

One would work out plans for exchange of scientific information.

The second committee would study the methods of enforcing the convention, banning production and use of atomic weapons.

Gromyko said both committees would serve under the atomic commission, which in turn must conform to the principles laid down in the United Nations Charter for the Security council.

Gromyko proposed that each committee would have a representative from each of the twelve states on the atomic commission. The atomic commission now is made up of the same nations which are on the Security council plus Canada.

counted the same full ten. Billy had barely stirred when he finished. He could have counted another ten. At two minutes, nineteen seconds of the eighth the roof fell in.

For Billy it was for keeps. Immediately afterward in his dressing room, he admitted it.

"I'm Through," Conn Says

"This is my last fight," he said. "I'm through. I just haven't got it."

For Louis it was the last fight at least until 1947. He had planned to try another one in September, but there is no challenger left ready to try trading anything but golf shots with him—and there are few of those, inasmuch as he's down in the low 70's now.

What's more, his lucmoe tax from his estimated "cut" of some $577,700 from a gate officially announced as $1,925,564 for this fight puts him well into the upper brackets, with no financial point in plying his trade again this year. Louis's "end" figured to be about $289,000.

In his dressing room, he was the same calm, quiet-speaking Joe who came out of the Alabama cotton fields by way of Detroit and soared up the trail to a spot not only as the greatest fistic destroyer of his generation, but one of the best-liked ever to put on a pair of gloves.

Describes Winning Punches

"I finished him with a right cross, a right upper-cut and a left hook," he explained, in reply to a question.

"Conn was slower than the last time," he added. "I told Manny (Trainer Manny Seamon) just before the eight round that I was going to fight him this round just to see what he'd do."

Someone asked then if it was his easiest fight. "Seems to me," he tossed off, "I remember a guy named Levinsky." This was King Levinsky of Chicago who barely waited to be hit before admitting the Bomber was the better man some years back.

Thus ended the most ballyhooed and anticipated classic that ring history has ever known, and once more the ancient jinx of a New York ball park—that a challenger has never won a title in one of them—held good.

Five years ago, they fought the last time. The great Negro champion put his crown up twice after that, early in 1942, in the most gallant pair of gestures any champion has ever made—giving his entire purse once to army emergency relief, and once to navy relief.

Then both went into the army and through four years entertained troops with hundreds of exhibitions and thousands of rounds in this country and overseas. Both came out just as they went in—plain GI's—asking and getting no favors. Once they were willing to fight tonight's battle for nothing except payment of a comparatively small amount of debts owed, but the War department couldn't see the idea. So it was put off until tonight.

The boys and girls came from all over the world to see Joe set off the same kind of explosives that the New York Yankee "Murderers' Row" of baseball used to fire on this same field when they were the fear of the American League.

It fell short of the $3,000,000 gate Promoter Mike Jacobs anticipated originally with his all time high charge of $100 per ringside seat. And it was well under the record $2,658,660 "take" that Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney lured into Soldier Field, Chicago, nineteen years ago.

650 Writers See Bout

But it went up into the select set as the ninth million-dollar gate in fistic history—the first since 1938 when Louis avenged the only defeat of his career by practically annihilating Max Schmeling.

And it attracted the largest outpouring of sports writers in ring history. They came from all over the world, some 650 of them, from Australia, Africa, Honolulu, Europe and North and South America.

The fans followed them too, and the ringside was well decorated tonight with leaders from all walks of life, the theater, sports, movies, business and just plain gus fan and the missus. Barney Baruch, America's elder statesman, was at ringside, and Andrei Gromyko and more of the United Nations delegates.

They turned out in cloudy weather but an otherwise cool, late spring evening that brought out the minks and the silver foxes and a few scattered topcoats to stand off the breezes and a momentary sprinkle three hours before the Negro, sporting a 25-pound weight advantage, and his boyish-faced challenger climbed into the ring.

Both had "hit the button" with their expected weights—Joe at 207 and Billy at 182, and their conditions were remarkable for a 32-year-old champion, and 28-year-old challenger, four years away from their business.

For a while there was not much to it after the opening bell. Louis stalked and stalked. Billy circled and boxed and danced from side to side and backward—far different than their last collision when he carried the fight to Joe and befuddled the bomber with swift moves and unexpected shifts.

Billy Takes Early Lead

Billy had the better of two of the first three rounds on all Associated Press score card, but after the third, it was Joe all the way.

There is no doubt he was far slower than he was five years ago—in his legs, that is. His hands still moved out with the swiftness of rockets fired from a P-38.

Less than ten punches were landed in the first round, and Conn did most of whatever landing there was, as both concentrated on jabbing, virtually exclusively. Conn's left hand spear connected several times, but after the bell ended the heat, the crowd booed the lack of fireworks.

In the second, Billy landed the single hardest blow, leaping in with a swinging right and catching Joe off guard momentarily. The clout left a dull red mark under the Bomber's left eye, but before the session ended, he stuck out three hard left jabs that reddened Conn's face. And he fired one short right, his first up to then.

Conn's straight left hand lances piled up the most points in the third. And, midway of the heat, he suddenly lunged in again with his favorite blow—a combined pair of hooks to head and body thrown with virtually one motion. It made Joe blink, just for half an instant, or maybe the lights were in the champion's eyes.

Tries To Corner Conn

But from the start of the fourth on, Joe's strategy became obvious. He was content to stalk Billy, trying to corner him, intent on maneuvering this dancing threat to his reign into the opening for just one of his blasting barrages.

In the fourth he did get Billy into one corner and slashed Conn's ribs with two rights, then fired a left-right to the head before the Smokytown boxing ace fought his way out of trouble. Then for awhile, Joe continued to jab and jab and jab some more, and Conn's face was scarleted now from the straight spear-like blows.

In the fifth, Joe tried a leaping right that connected, but did little damage. Once he caught Billy against the ropes and fired left and right and later, in a corner, pummeled Billy's body.

The sixth was a jabbing session again with both reaching out and sticking away. Late in the round, Joe let go a digging hook for the mid-section and in going away from the punch, Billy slipped to one knee. Joe stepped back until he got to his feet, and the crowd cheered the gesture.

Slams Joe in Mouth

The pace stepped up in the seventh because Billy moved in a bit more. Suddenly he jumped into close range and smashed a hard hook off Joe's mouth that Louis didn't like a bit, but the champion jabbed and hooked and stalked — still waiting.

That hook was just about Conn's last offensive gesture. He jabbed a few times early in the eighth, but Joe had made up his mind he was "going to fight him" now. He worked Billy up close to the ropes on the west side of the ring, nearest the grandstand. Finally, he had his man in position. Then he let him have it. The lights went out and the birdies sang for Billy—but Billy couldn't tell if it was dark or if it was music.

into the Holy Land. His flight from Paris came at a time when representatives of the Arab states were discussing methods of opposing the British-American inquiry committee's recommendation for the immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine this year.

He is regarded as a shrewd, aggressive leader who might play an important part in Arab strategy if Britain and the United States should attempt to carry out the inquiry committee's recommendations.

employes—have been used in behalf of Mr. Tawes and his ticket." On this point, Lane did not elaborate.

"The Tawes headquarters has been using Mr. Elgin as the hatchet man," Lane asserted. "He is their chairman and he has been picked to issue statements derogatory to me, my running mates and our discussion of the issues of this campaign."

Baldwin's remarks were made in the course of a rally last night at Holy Cross hall. He said, in part:

"When an individual can, by spending huge sums, become elected to office, men of modest means are precluded, regardless of ability or principles, from ever holding public office in this state.

"Mr. Lane x x x is spending huge sums by publishing advertisements so expensive that each one represents nearly half the annual salary of the governor of Maryland. x x x

"I think, if the truth can be ascertained when this campaign is over, it will be shown that Mr. Lane is spending more money than has ever been spent by any candidate for public office in this state before. A great many people believe it will reach scandalous proportions."

Referring to the "platitude" platform, Baldwin called upon Lane to "tell the people of Maryland what kind of tax he is going to impose on them to give all these additional services while reducing the real estate tax."

Baldwin also told the rally that he proposed to deliver a speech, before the campaign ends, on the public service commission, which regulates utility rates in the state. He added:

"I want to say to you here and now that if I am elected governor, the public service commission I appoint will not be controlled by utility lawyers."

Arthur H. Brice, a member of this commission and a Democratic leader in Kent county, recently withdrew his support of the Baldwin candidacy and joined the Lane forces.

In the Democratic senatorial contest today, a supporter of the incumbent, Sen. George L. Radcliffe, declared that Gov. O'Conor, Radcliffe's opponent, blocked legislation to reduce the voting age in Maryland and give the franchise to 18-year-old soldiers.

William Heinekamp, a former member of the House of Delegates, said O'Conor permitted the killing of a bill which would have let voters pass upon a constitutional amendment lowering the voting age. He said the governor used his influence in the legislature to prevent the bill's being brought to a vote.

Radcliffe, meanwhile, received the indorsement of Dr. Charles H. Conley, Western Maryland Democratic leader, who ran against Gov. Ritchie in 1934. Conley also announced he would back Tawes for governor.

James Harahan, Jr., Dies

CHICAGO, Junt 19 (AP)—James T. Harahan, Jr., 73, retired steel executive and member of a family of railroad executives, died yesterday after a long illness.

Born in Columbia, Tenn., Harahan was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1898 and was in the railroad department of Inland Steel Company from 1921 until his retirement in 1931.

Million Dollars Is Offered for Stock Of Cleveland Team

Jimmy Dykes Mentioned as New Manager if Deal Is Made

CLEVELAND, June 19—(AP)—Bill Veeck, Jr, 32-year-old ex-marine who enlivened Milwaukee baseball for three years as owner of the Brewers, today laid money on the line in a proposition to buy all the stock of the Cleveland Indians. His associates in the offer were not disclosed.

Directors of the club met today to consider a written proposition from Veeck and decided to submit it to all stockholders. President Alva Bradley said it might take several days to get a complete response, as several shareholders were out of the city.

Bradley and John Sherwin, Jr., are among the major stockholders. The board of directors, including Bradley and Sherwin, holds a majority of the stock.

Both Bradley and Director L. F. Freiberger, chairman of the Cleveland Trust Company, said Veeck represented a group, but declined to mention any names.

All Stock Is Sought

Neither would discuss the nature of the proposition, except to say that it was for all the stock of the club. Freiberger added that if any stockholders failed to agree to the proposition, the deal would fall through, unless the Veeck group amended its written proposition.

A portion of the purchase money has been placed in escrow, and "fairly soon" the date will arrive on which all stock and all money is to be in escrow if the deal is going through, said Freiberger.

Sherwin frequently has been represented as desiring to sell. Neither Bradley nor Freiberger would indicate their attitude toward the proposition. Attorney Joseph C. Hostetler, a director of the club and counsel for the American league, also declined comment.

$1,400,000 Offer Rejected

The Cleveland News said the amount involved in Veeck's original offer "was reported to be $1,400,000" and that when that offer was turned down he made another.

The paper also termed Jimmy Dykes, who recently resigned after twelve years as manager of the White Sox, a likely candidate to succeed Lou Boudreau as pilot of the team, predicting the new owners would buy up the shortstop's managerial contract and keep him on as a player. Boudreau's contract as manager runs through 1947.

Legion Program Is Success

By C. V. BURNS

Cumberland baseball fans will be given an opportunity to see the only undefeated amateur team in the tri-state district in action on Sunday when the Westvaco A. A. invades Stitcher field to battle the Queen City Brewers.

If the Tri-Towns outfit can bag both ends of its doubleheader with Romney at Westernport on Saturday it will come to Cumberland the following day with a record of ten straight triumphs.

Westvaco has defeated every team in the league at least once with the exception of the Centerville Reds. The reason for their failure to meet is the fact that their four meetings have been crowded into two doubleheaders, which should prove to be "naturals" inasmuch as the Pulpmen and Reds loom as the leading contenders for the title in the Bi-State League. The first games of this series are set for Centerville on July 4 and that should be an appropriate day to set off fireworks. They'll come to grips again on Labor Day, the final day of the season.

Manager Frankie Sullivan's league leaders were forced to play ten innings to win the lid-lifter from Frostburg by the score of 8-7. Since then the Westvaco team has engaged in nine games. Two wins over Romney were tossed out of the records when both teams were found guilty of using ineligible players in a Decoration Day dual bill and another game scheduled with Midland was won by the forfeit route when Midland was unable to field a team.

Westvaco's run-getting and pitching records in the past six games are worthy of special note as the pace-setters have piled up 58 runs, an average of 9.67 per game while the mound corps comprising Bill See, Leo Ryan and Al Thomas has held the opposition to an average of 1.8 runs per game.

Bill See turned back Barton 22-2, Frostburg 6-2 and Barton 13-4. Ryan mastered Frostburg 8-7 in ten heats and Lonaconing 3-2 while Al Thomas whitewashed Queen City, 5-0 and tamed Romney 9-1. In the games that were eliminated from the records Thomas jolted Romney 18-1 and Ryan blanked the West Virginians 23-0.

Westvaco is reported to have a well balanced ball club and its pitchers have been taking their regular turn on the rubber. The first visit of Skipper Sullivan's outfit to Cumberland on Sunday should serve as a magnet for attracting a large crowd to the North End field.

Paul "Man Mountain" Clapper, Centerville's mound ace, is the leading winning pitcher, among the moundsmen operating in the two tri-state amateur circuits. The big fellow has racked up five in a row against no losses and his work has highlighted the nine game winning streak of Manager Alton Nave's aggregation.

Clapper has yielded 1.4 runs per game in besting Midland 13-0, Romney 8-2, Queen City 3-0, Frostburg 4-3 and Lonaconing 8-2 while his mates have averaged 7.2 runs per game. Bob Cook defeated Midland 5-2 and Queen City 12-2, Milton Rose turned back Queen City 4-1 and Duckworth conquered Barton 7-3 to round out the long winning streak.

The Reds have ammassed a total of 64 runs while holding the opposition to 15 since losing the first game of the season to Lonaconing, 10-6.

The Centerville - Frostburg game in the Mountain City on Sunday looms as a real test for the Pennsylvanians as they had a tough time beating Enoch Price's warriors in Centerville on June 8. This game will likely bring together Clapper and Ival "Speed" Lambert, who has bagged five decisions while losing two—both to Westvaco.

Since Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, launched its athletic program last October by staging the first of a series of eight boxing shows, a total of 78 bouts, much has been accomplished by teams representing the organization.

Manager Art Garbark's baseball aggregation is holding down first place in two leagues—the City and Interstate — and Manager Norman Gerdeman's youngsters are out in front in the American Legion Junior Baseball League. Skipper Curtis Hickle's aggregation has been in the thick of the fight for first half honors in the City Softball League while the Legion entry has made a fairly good showing in the Rocking Chair Softball League after getting away to a bad start.

Commander Sam Graham has a good reason to smile these days as the athletic program has made rapid strides during his administration.

Yes, Fort Cumberland Post has given athletics a much needed shot in the arm since the boys came back from the wars.

Brooklyn Gets Four Runs in First Inning and Wins 7 to 0

BROOKLYN, June 19 (AP)—Joe Hatten, Brooklyn's highly touted rookie pitcher, made up for some early season disappointments today by shutting out Pittsburgh, 7-0 on seven base hits.

GIANTS EDGE REDS

NEW YORK, June 19, (AP)—Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell, an ex-GI who pitched his devision to the Third Army championship, dropped a heart-breaking 4-3 verdict to the New York Giants today after throwing no-hit, no-run ball for the first six innings.

Only two balls were hit to the outfield off the prize rookie up to the seventh when he blew sky high and allowed all four scores on a combination of four walks, a hit batsman, a single and triple. He yielded only one other safety.

Oddly enough, the man who profited most by this collapse was Nate Andrews, a former Cincy teammate who was making his first start in a bid for a regular job with the Giants. Andrews was lifted for a pinchhitter in the big inning but received credit for the win that kept the Giants from tumbling into the league basement. Box:

MARYLAND SEEKS TO VALIDATE RULE ON DRUGGING OF HORSES

Race Commission Carries Fight to Court of Appeals

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 19. (AP)—The state racing commission carried to the court of appeals today its fight to validate its rule on administering drugs to race horses in a case resulting from the suspension of a trainer.

The horse trainer, J. Dallet Byers, had his license suspended for a year under the commission's Rule 146, after a hearing on the alleged drugging of a horse.

In a preceding case, which turned on procedure, and involved two owners, W. L. Brann and Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr., and two trainers, Edward A. Christmas and Clay Sutphin, the same rule was discussed.

Deputy Attorney General Hammond, in presenting the commission's case, contended that the alleged finding of benzedrine in the saliva of Cosey, a Byers-trained horse, at Pimlico November 14, 1945 was sufficient to justify revoking Byers's license.

One section (D) of the commission's rules previously was held unconstitutional by Judge Emory Niles of the Baltimore City Circuit Court, and his reasoning was followed by Judge Edward T. Dickerson of the Baltimore Supreme Bench in the Byers case.

The section, which the state asked the high tribunal to pass upon, states that "the fact that analysis shows the presence of a drug shall be conclusive evidence" that the trainer knew of the drug or was guilty of carelessness in permitting it to be administered.

Hammond argued that the rule was valid under general powers of the commission to lay down rules for racing in the state.

His arguments met frequent questions from the high court, especially when dealing with the commission's rule presuming guilt.

Attorney Stuart S. Janney, Jr., counsel for Byers, declared that he believed the commission's rule on presuming guilt was invalid as found earlier, but he added also that the commission had not produced evidence to justify Byers's license suspension.

He said there was not proof as to when benzedrine was administered to Cosey if it was administered, although the commission's rule states that drugs may not be given horses within forty-eight hours preceding a race.

He added that receiving barns at race tracks had apparently provided the solution to the problem of doping horses, which the commission's rule was aimed at preventing.

After hearing Byers's counsel, the court recessed until tomorrow, when concluding arguments will be heard.

Earlier the court heard Attorney Philip B. Perlman, arguing for the trainers and owners, claim that his clients wanted only their day in court. This, he asserted, was denied them by Judge Niles when he threw out their bill of complaint.

Deputy Attorney General Hammond represented the commission also in this case which resulted in frequent questions from the bench to clarify what appeared to be a legal tangle on procedure.

Hammond contended the case was brought "prematurely."

Illinois and Trojans Rated Co-Favorites In NCAA Track Meet

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 19 (AP)—Co-favored Illinois's 12-man squad is a threat in at least a half-dozen events in the National Collegiate track and field meet at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday, but the form sheet casts only brilliant quartermiler Herb McKenley as a cinch winner.

The Illini were easy victors in the Big Ten and Central Collegiate Conference championships, yet they move into the national showdown almost in the shadow of traditionally-powerful Southern California, which won the nine straight NCAA crowns before taking wartime leave of the meet in 1943.

Illinois copped in 1944 and Navy, which is not entered this year, triumphed last year. Now the Trojans, loaded for bear with a 13-man squad, are primed to take up where they left off.

Hepburn Hung Up Record In Car without Brakes

LOS ANGELES, June 19 (AP)—Ralph Hepburn, Van Nuys, Calif., auto racer who set a new qualifying mark for the Indianapolis 500-mile classic—133.944 mph—drove without brakes part of the way in the main race.

Hepburn, who was forced out of the running by motor trouble after 302½ miles, told a dinner club meeting here that after two laps of racing the hydraulic brakes went out. He said he went into the pits at 87 miles to check a tire and let his mechanics examine the brakes.

After seven minutes the mechanics said there wasn't anything they could do, so Hepburn climbed back in his car and let it roar.

"I used compression and prayers on the turns," he told his listeners.

Caseys to Face Moose, Elks Oppose Outdoor Club in Games Today

Three other league tilts are on tap today. The Outdoor Club and the B.P.O. Elks will tangle at Fort Hill, Potomac Edison will be host to the Knights of Pythias on Rolling Mill field and the American Legion will tackle the Jaycees at Taylor field.

The Woodmen-Texcel game has been postponed until tomorrow and will be played on the Rolling Mill diamond.

GIANTS EDGE REDS

NEW YORK, June 19. (AP)—Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell, an ex-GI who pitched his devision to the Third Army championship, dropped a heart-breaking 4-3 verdict to the New York Giants today after throwing no-hit, no-run ball for the first six innings.

Only two balls were hit to the outfield off the prize rookie up to the seventh when he blew sky high and allowed all four scores on a combination of four walks, a hit batsman, a single and triple. He yielded only one other safety.

Oddly enough, the man who profited most by this collapse was Nate Andrews, a former Cincy teammate who was making his first start in a bid for a regular job with the Giants. Andrews was lifted for a pinchhitter in the big inning but received credit for the win that kept the Giants from tumbling into the league basement. Box:

MARYLAND SEEKS TO VALIDATE RULE ON DRUGGING OF HORSES

Race Commission Carries Fight to Court of Appeals

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 19. (AP)—The state racing commission carried to the court of appeals today its fight to validate its rule on administering drugs to race horses in a case resulting from the suspension of a trainer.

The horse trainer, J. Dallet Byers, had his license suspended for a year under the commission's Rule 146, after a hearing on the alleged drugging of a horse.

In a preceding case, which turned on procedure, and involved two owners, W. L. Brann and Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr., and two trainers, Edward A. Christmas and Clay Sutphin, the same rule was discussed.

Deputy Attorney General Hammond, in presenting the commission's case, contended that the alleged finding of benzedrine in the saliva of Cosey, a Byers-trained horse, at Pimlico November 14, 1945 was sufficient to justify revoking Byers's license.

One section (D) of the commission's rules previously was held unconstitutional by Judge Emory Niles of the Baltimore City Circuit Court, and his reasoning was followed by Judge Edward T. Dickerson of the Baltimore Supreme Bench in the Byers case.

The section, which the state asked the high tribunal to pass upon, states that "the fact that analysis shows the presence of a drug shall be conclusive evidence" that the trainer knew of the drug or was guilty of carelessness in permitting it to be administered.

Hammond argued that the rule was valid under general powers of the commission to lay down rules for racing in the state.

His arguments met frequent questions from the high court, especially when dealing with the commission's rule presuming guilt.

Attorney Stuart S. Janney, Jr., counsel for Byers, declared that he believed the commission's rule on presuming guilt was invalid as found earlier, but he added also that the commission had not produced evidence to justify Byers's license suspension.

He said there was not proof as to when benzedrine was administered to Cosey if it was administered, although the commission's rule states that drugs may not be given horses within forty-eight hours preceding a race.

He added that receiving barns at race tracks had apparently provided the solution to the problem of doping horses, which the commission's rule was aimed at preventing.

After hearing Byers's counsel, the court recessed until tomorrow, when concluding arguments will be heard.

Earlier the court heard Attorney Philip B. Perlman, arguing for the trainers and owners, claim that his clients wanted only their day in court. This, he asserted, was denied tnem by Judge Niles when he threw out their bill of complaint.

Deputy Attorney General Hammond represented the commission also in this case which resulted in frequent questions from the bench to clarify what appeared to be a legal tangle on procedure.

Hammond contended the case was brought "prematurely."

Illinois and Trojans Rated Co-Favorites In NCAA Track Meet

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 19 (AP)—Co-favored Illinois's 12-man squad is a threat in at least a half-dozen events in the National Collegiate track and field meet at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday, but the form sheet casts only brilliant quartermiler Herb McKenley as a cinch winner.

The Illini were easy victors in the Big Ten and Central Collegiate Conference championships, yet they move into the national showdown almost in the shadow of traditionally-powerful Southern California which won the nine straight NCAA crowns before taking wartime leave of the meet in 1943.

Illinois copped in 1944 and Navy, which is not entered this year, triumphed last year. Now the Trojans, loaded for bear with a 13-man squad, are primed to take up where they left off.

Hepburn Hung Up Record In Car without Brakes

LOS ANGELES, June 19 (AP)—Ralph Hepburn, Van Nuys, Calif., auto racer who set a new qualifying mark for the Indianapolis 500-mile classic—133.944 mph—drove without brakes part of the way in the main race.

Hepburn, who was forced out of the running by motor trouble after 302½ miles, told a dinner club meeting here that after two laps of racing the hydraulic brakes went out. He said he went into the pits at 87 miles to check a tire and let his mechanics examine the brakes.

After seven minutes the mechanics said there wasn't anything they could do, so Hepburn climbed back in his car and let it roar.

"I used compression and prayers on the turns," he told his listeners.

"I'll Never Fight Again," Conn Declares after Bout

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — "I can't fight. I'm through, boys, I'll never fight again. It's the kid's last fight."

Billy Conn sat on a rubbing table in his dressing room as he verbally ended his ring career, and although his words might indicate a brooding dejection, there was nothing like that in his attitude. He was as cheerful and alert as anyone could be who had just been knocked cold by the fists of Joe Louis, and realized a dream of five long years had been shattered in a matter of seconds.

"Did he hurt me?" he laughed in answer to a question. "He knocked me on my pants. He must have hurt me. But I wasn't hurt before that. But he hit me a daisy then."

A late comer asked again what had happened. Billy laughed.

"He hit me on the jaw, that's all," he said. "I had planned to keep moving and tire him out, and was all ready to go to work on him when it happened. He's a great puncher. I heard the count, but I couldn't get up."

Fight Sidelights

Conn's Sister Sobs

PITTSBURGH, June 19 (AP) — "I'm sorry for Billy. He was so confident," said Mrs. Henrietta Conn, step-mother of the challenger, smiling bravely tonight after Billy Conn had lost his second bid for the world's heavyweight title.

Nearby, red-headed Peggy Ann Conn, Billy's 16-year-old sister, sobbed hysterically, and was comforted by relatives and other friends who had gathered in the living room of William R. Conn, Sr., home to hear the fight broadcast.

At the home of the challenger several blocks away, reporters and photographers were told his wife was "not at home."

Extra Police Called

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Extra police were called to Harlem in General and the Hotel Theresa in particular in mid-afternoon today to handle the crowd gathered there for Joe Louis's expected arrival.

Police estimated that 20,000 persons were packed into Seventh avenue between 124th and 125th streets with the entrance to the hotel, where Louis was to spend the afternoon resting, completely blocked. Louis defends his heavyweight title against Billy Conn in Yankee stadium tonight.

Grappler Defies Winner

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Everett Marshall, one-time claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling championship and now a successful farmer at LaJunta, Colo., arrived today to challenge the winner of Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight to a mixed match.

"I have $100,000 that says I can pin either Louis or Conn before they knock me out," Marshall said.

He added that he intended to retire from big-time wrestling soon and wanted the mixed event held sometime this fall.

Dewey Is Picketed

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19 (AP) — Albert Epstein of Rockland county, a World War II veteran, said today he and his family would picket Gov. Thomas E. Dewey outside the Yankee stadium during the Louis-Conn fight tonight. Dewey will attend the bout.

Epstein, his wife and three children, have been picketing outside the state capitol since yesterday morning in protest against the state liquor authority's refusal to grant him a liquor license for an inn.

Epstein, who claims the license was refused because he would not pay graft to an unnamed Alcoholic Beverage Control Board agent, was to leave with his family for New York City late this afternoon.

The state liquor authority's disapproval notice on Epstein's license application said he was not operating a bona fide hotel, was not the party in interest and was not "a proper person" to receive a license.

Golfers Attend Fight

TOLEDO, O., June 19 (AP) — The fistic engagement between Mr. Joe Louis and Mr. Billy Conn and the weather provided some worries tonight for the Inverness Invitational Golf Tournament.

Ten of the sixteen players in the tournament either were here today or on their way but among those still missing were Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, the new national open champion; Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tenn. All three had tickets for the Louis-Conn scrap and planned to fly here after the fight.

Should the weather turn bad—that would be bad, said Inverness officials.

NEW GROUP GETS TRIBE

CLEVELAND, June 19—(AP)—Bill Veeck, former owner of the Milwaukee Brewers, said tonight he and his associates were prepared to take over immediate operation of the Cleveland Indians, and that he was "hopeful that the sale will be completed in two or three days."

Legion and Moose, Queen City-Eagles Are Paired Today

Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, is favored to defeat the Loyal Order of Moose in a City Baseball League game when the teams meet today at 5:30 o'clock at Community Park.

The Legion is undefeated and tops the five-club race with six wins and no losses. Moose failed to win a game in four starts.

At Stitcher field, the Queen City Brewers will cross bats with the Fraternal Order of Eagles at 5:30 o'clock. Queen City holds second place with a record of three wins and two defeats. The Eagles are in fourth place, having won one game in four starts.

Hoboken Observes Baseball Centennial

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 19—(AP)—With Commissioner Albert B. (Happy) Chandler and National League President Ford C. Frick taking part in the ceremonies, the city of Hoboken today officially celebrated the centennial of the first baseball game ever played between organized teams.

With Mayor Bernard N. McFeely declaring a half-holiday most of this riverfront community of 50,000 turned out with more fuss and fanfare than prevailed here on June 19, 1846 when the first real game of ball, as we know it today—between the New York nine and the Knickerbocker club of New York—was played on the old Elysian fields, the site which is now covered by a coffee warehouse.

Hearing for New York Giants Is Postponed

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Hearing on the New York Giants application to make permanent a temporary order restraining the Mexican Baseball League and its officers and representatives from tampering with Giant players under contract was postponed today until October 21.

The temporary order remains in effect until then. Attorneys said the delay was sought so that the Giants could await the outcome of a similar action sought by the New York Yankees on October 14.

Detroit's Tigers Cop Eight in Row From Athletics

Trucks Scatters Six Hits To Bag Twilight Game, 3 to 0

DETROIT, June 19 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers stretched their mastery over last place Philadelphia to eight straight games today as Virgil (Fire) Trucks blanked the A's 3 to 0 by scattering a half dozen hits.

A twilight crowd of 12,413 paid saw the Tigers score an unearned run on Shortstop Johnny Wallaesa's wide throw in the second inning and then rattle five straight hits off Russ Christopher in the sixth for the other two.

Successive singles by Dick Wakefield, Hank Greenberg, Mullin, Jimmy Bloodworth and Tebbetts were good for only two runs in the Tiger sixth but forced Christopher to retire with his fourth defeat. Joe Savage and Dick Fowler pitched hitless ball the rest of the way. Box:

ENTRIES ARE BEING ACCEPTED FOR CITY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Considerable interest is being manifested in the city tennis tournament, to be held on local courts the first week in July.

A number of players have already entered in the men's singles, women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. The entry list includes some men and women now residing in Cumberland who have had a lot of tennis experience, and the final rounds may be played by newcomers to the Cumberland courts.

The last city tournament was played in July 1944. The men's singles was won by Maurice Bernstein, who defeated Bud Brazzel in the finals at the Country club. Hope Mills won the women's singles by defeating Betty Flake at the Dingle. The men's doubles were won by Gordon Bowie and Joseph Cromwell from Robert Bane and Loraine Eisenberg at the Country club. Jeannette Leasure and Robert Bane defeated Hope Mills and L. E. Van Sant for the mixed doubles championship.

Entries should be made to Joe Garlitz, at Garlitz's courts, Gordon Bowie, at the Country club, and L. E. Van Sant, the Dingle courts. No entry fees are being charged. Matches can be played on all the local courts.

The postponement will delay the opening of the best of three games championship series until next Monday when First Presbyterian will play the winner of the St. John's-Grace Methodist contest.

MATCH IS TELEVISED

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — An estimated 100,000 fight fans who never got near Yankee stadium tonight saw and heard heavyweight champ Joe Louis box Billy Conn to the canvas just as plainly as if they had stood on the shoulders of a man with a $100 seat at the ringside.

The National Broadcasting Company did it with mirrors—and the rest of the paraphernalia which goes into 1946 television.

Phillies Release Jimmy Wasdell

PHILADELPHIA, June 19—(AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies may be hard up for a first baseman but today they granted Jimmy Wasdell his unconditional release.

Wasdell, a first baseman and outfielder, had been expected by many fans to step into the shoes of Frank McCormick, regular first sacker on the sidelines with a broken rib.

However, Manager Ben Chapman said that Vance Dinges, first baseman from the Phil's Utica (N.Y.) club in the Eastern league will fill in for McCormick. Dingers was impressive as a rookie last year but appeared only as a pinch hitter this year before being shipped to Utica for more seasoning.

Blow by Blow Account Of Conn-Louis Fight

By SID FEDER

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 19 (AP)—Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Billy Conn met in this huge ball park tonight in their long-awaited return match for the world heavyweight crown before a vast crowd of some 65,000 fans. The gate was estimated at $2,250,000.

Lewis had a 25 pound weight edge scaling 207 to Conn's 182. Champion Joe was a 1 to 3½ betting favorite. The referee was Eddie Joseph, same arbiter who was in the ring for the first meeting. The judges was Jack O'Sullivan and Frank Forbes.

The blow by blow account follows:

ROUND ONE

ROUND TWO

ROUND THREE

ROUND FOUR

ROUND FIVE

ROUND SIX

ROUND EIGHT

Louis's Clouting May Get Him Job In Mexican League

"They Tell Me I Hit Pretty Good," Champion Declares

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 19. (AP)—From the mob standing on each other's sholders in the champion's steaming dressing room came a voice strong enough to be heard through the din:

"I dunno," replied Joe Louis. "I may go down to that Mexican league. They tell me I hit pretty good."

That was typical of the cool, sharp way the Brown Bomber parried and thrust into the barrage of questions, just as coolly as he had picked off Billy Conn's best and sharply as he had sent those final three punishing punches home.

Joe identified them, in their proper order. Number one was a right cross. Number two was a right uppercut. Number three and curtains was a left hook.

"Didn't hurt," said Joe, between slugs out of a quart bottle of mineral water and bites into a section of orange. "It hit me too high."

This sort of dialogue was being carried on to baffling accompaniment of reporters plying Joe with questions, photographers trying to have him face six different ways at once, and a radio man shoving a mike under his nose. Through it Joe remained easily the least perturbed man in the room.

Game Is Rescheduled

Harold E. Naughton, president of the Midget Baseball League, last night announced that the Don and Bud's-Lover's Leap game, postponed yesterday on account of rain, will be played Sunday at 2 p. m. at Campobello.

Rain yesterday also washed out the City Softball League and City Baseball League contests.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — "I can't fight. I'm through, boys, I'll never fight again. It's the kid's last fight."

Billy Conn sat on a rubbing table in his dressing room as he verbally ended his ring career, and although his words might indicate a brooding dejection, there was nothing like that in his attitude. He was as cheerful and alert as anyone could be who had just been knocked cold by the fists of Joe Louis, and realized a dream of five long years had been shattered in a matter of seconds.

"Did he hurt me?" he laughed in answer to a question. "He knocked me on my pants. He must have hurt me. But I wasn't hurt before that. But he hit me a daisy then."

A late comer asked again what had happened. Billy laughed.

"He hit me on the jaw, that's all," he said. "I had planned to keep moving and tire him out, and was all ready to go to work on him when it happened. He's a great puncher. I heard the count, but I couldn't get up."

Fight Sidelights

Conn's Sister Sobs

PITTSBURGH, June 19 (AP) — "I'm sorry for Billy. He was so confident," said Mrs. Henrietta Conn, step-mother of the challenger, smiling bravely tonight after Billy Conn had lost his second bid for the world's heavyweight title.

Nearby, red-headed Peggy Ann Conn, Billy's 16-year-old sister, sobbed hysterically, and was comforted by relatives and other friends who had gathered in the living room of William R. Conn, Sr., home to hear the fight broadcast.

At the home of the challenger several blocks away, reporters and photographers were told his wife was "not at home."

Extra Police Called

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Extra police were called to Harlem in General and the Hotel Theresa in particular in mid-afternoon today to handle the crowd gathered there for Joe Louis's expected arrival.

Police estimated that 20,000 persons were packed into Seventh avenue between 124th and 125th streets with the entrance to the hotel, where Louis was to spend the afternoon resting, completely blocked. Louis defends his heavyweight title against Billy Conn in Yankee stadium tonight.

Grappler Defies Winner

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Everett Marshall, one-time claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling championship and now a successful farmer at LaJunta, Colo., arrived today to challenge the winner of Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight to a mixed match.

"I have $100,000 that says I can pin either Louis or Conn before they knock me out," Marshall said.

He added that he intended to retire from big-time wrestling soon and wanted the mixed event held sometime this fall.

Dewey Is Picketed

ALBANY, N. Y., June 19 (AP) — Albert Epstein of Rockland county, a World War II veteran, said today he and his family would picket Gov. Thomas E. Dewey outside the Yankee stadium during the Louis-Conn fight tonight. Dewey will attend the bout.

Epstein, his wife and three children, have been picketing outside the state capitol since yesterday morning in protest against the state liquor authority's refusal to grant him a liquor license for an inn.

Epstein, who claims the license was refused because he would not pay graft to an unnamed Alcoholic Beverage Control Board agent, was to leave with his family for New York City late this afternoon.

The state liquor authority's disapproval notice on Epstein's license application said he was not operating a bona fide hotel, was not the party in interest and was not "a proper person" to receive a license.

Golfers Attend Fight

TOLEDO, O., June 19 (AP) — The fistic engagement between Mr. Joe Louis and Mr. Billy Conn and the weather provided some worries tonight for the Inverness Invitational Golf Tournament.

Ten of the sixteen players in the tournament either were here today or on their way but among those still missing were Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, the new national open champion; Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., and Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tenn. All three had tickets for the Louis-Conn scrap and planned to fly here after the fight.

Should the weather turn bad—that would be bad, said Inverness officials.

NEW GROUP GETS TRIBE

CLEVELAND, June 19—(AP)—Bill Veeck, former owner of the Milwaukee Brewers, said tonight he and his associates were prepared to take over immediate operation of the Cleveland Indians, and that he was "hopeful that the sale will be completed in two or three days."

Legion and Moose, Queen City-Eagles Are Paired Today

Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, is favored to defeat the Loyal Order of Moose in a City Baseball League game when the teams meet today at 5:30 o'clock at Community Park.

The Legion is undefeated and tops the five-club race with six wins and no losses. Moose failed to win a game in four starts.

At Stitcher field, the Queen City Brewers will cross bats with the Fraternal Order of Eagles at 5:30 o'clock. Queen City holds second place with a record of three wins and two defeats. The Eagles are in fourth place, having won one game in four starts.

Hoboken Observes Baseball Centennial

HOBOKEN, N. J., June 19—(AP)—With Commissioner Albert B. (Happy) Chandler and National League President Ford C. Frick taking part in the ceremonies, the city of Hoboken today officially celebrated the centennial of the first baseball game ever played between organized teams.

With Mayor Bernard N. McFeely declaring a half-holiday most of this riverfront community of 50,000 turned out with more fuss and fanfare than prevailed here on June 19, 1846 when the first real game of ball, as we know it today—between the New York nine and the Knickerbocker club of New York—was played on the old Elysian fields, the site which is now covered by a coffee warehouse.

Hearing for New York Giants Is Postponed

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — Hearing on the New York Giants application to make permanent a temporary order restraining the Mexican Baseball League and its officers and representatives from tampering with Giant players under contract was postponed today until October 21.

The temporary order remains in effect until then. Attorneys said the delay was sought so that the Giants could await the outcome of a similar action sought by the New York Yankees on October 14.

Detroit's Tigers Cop Eight in Row From Athletics

Trucks Scatters Six Hits To Bag Twilight Game, 3 to 0

DETROIT, June 19 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers stretched their mastery over last place Philadelphia to eight straight games today as Virgil (Fire) Trucks blanked the A's 3 to 0 by scattering a half dozen hits.

A twilight crowd of 12,413 paid saw the Tigers score an unearned run on Shortstop Johnny Wallaesa's wide throw in the second inning and then rattle five straight hits off Russ Christopher in the sixth for the other two.

Successive singles by Dick Wakefield, Hank Greenberg, Mullin, Jimmy Bloodworth and Tebbetts were good for only two runs in the Tiger sixth but forced Christopher to retire with his fourth defeat. Joe Savage and Dick Fowler pitched hitless ball the rest of the way. Box:

ENTRIES ARE BEING ACCEPTED FOR CITY TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Considerable interest is being manifested in the city tennis tournament, to be held on local courts the first week in July.

A number of players have already entered in the men's singles, women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. The entry list includes some men and women now residing in Cumberland who have had a lot of tennis experience, and the final rounds may be played by newcomers to the Cumberland courts.

The last city tournament was played in July 1944. The men's singles was won by Maurice Bernstein, who defeated Bud Brazzel in the finals at the Country club. Hope Mills won the women's singles by defeating Betty Flake at the Dingle. The men's doubles were won by Gordon Bowie and Joseph Cromwell from Robert Bane and Loraine Eisenberg at the Country club. Jeannette Leasure and Robert Bane defeated Hope Mills and L. E. Van Sant for the mixed doubles championship.

Entries should be made to Joe Garlitz, at Garlitz's courts, Gordon Bowie, at the Country club, and L. E. Van Sant, the Dingle courts. No entry fees are being charged. Matches can be played on all the local courts.

Sunday School Loop Game Is Postponed Until Tomorrow

Postponed yesterday on account of rain, the St. John's Lutheran-Grace Methodist game, which will determine one of the two finalists in the championship series of the Central YMCA Sunday School Softball League, will be played Friday at 6:15 o'clock at Fort Hill field, it was announced last night by Clifton Van Roby, physical director of the "Y."

The postponement will delay the opening of the best of three games championship series until next Monday when First Presbyterian will play the winner of the St. John's-Grace Methodist contest.

MATCH IS TELEVISED

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — An estimated 100,000 fight fans who never got near Yankee stadium tonight saw and heard heavyweight champ Joe Louis box Billy Conn to the canvas just as plainly as if they had stood on the shoulders of a man with a $100 seat at the ringside.

The National Broadcasting Company did it with mirrors—and the rest of the paraphernalia which goes into 1946 television.

Phillies Release Jimmy Wasdell

PHILADELPHIA, June 19—(AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies may be hard up for a first baseman but today they granted Jimmy Wasdell his unconditional release.

Wasdell, a first baseman and outfielder, had been expected by many fans to step into the shoes of Frank McCormick, regular first sacker on the sidelines with a broken rib.

However, Manager Ben Chapman said that Vance Dinges, first baseman from the Phil's Utica (N.Y.) club in the Eastern league will fill in for McCormick. Dingers was impressive as a rookie last year but appeared only as a pinch hitter this year before being shipped to Utica for more seasoning.

CONN SAGS UNDER LOUIS'S BLOWS

Blow by Blow Account Of Conn-Louis Fight

By SID FEDER

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 19 (AP)—Champion Joe Louis and Challenger Billy Conn met in this huge ball park tonight in their long-awaited return match for the world heavyweight crown before a vast crowd of some 65,000 fans. The gate was estimated at $2,250,000.

Lewis had a 25 pound weight edge scaling 207 to Conn's 182. Champion Joe was a 1 to 3½ betting favorite. The referee was Eddie Joseph, same arbiter who was in the ring for the first meeting. The judges was Jack O'Sullivan and Frank Forbes.

The blow by blow account follows:

ROUND FOUR

ROUND FIVE

Louis's Clouting May Get Him Job In Mexican League

"They Tell Me I Hit Pretty Good," Champion Declares

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 19. (AP)—From the mob standing on each other's sholders in the champion's steaming dressing room came a voice strong enough to be heard through the din:

"Hey, Joe, what're your plans? Gonna fight again this year?"

"I dunno," replied Joe Louis. "I may go down to that Mexican league. They tell me I hit pretty good."

That was typical of the cool, sharp way the Brown Bomber parried and thrust into the barrage of questions, just as coolly as he had picked off Billy Conn's best and sharply as he had sent those final three punishing punches home.

Joe identified them, in their proper order. Number one was a right cross. Number two was a right uppercut. Number three and curtains was a left hook.

"Didn't hurt," said Joe, between slugs out of a quart bottle of mineral water and bites into a section of orange. "It hit me too high."

This sort of dialogue was being carried on to baffling accompaniment of reporters plying Joe with questions, photographers trying to have him face six different ways at once, and a radio man shoving a mike under his nose. Through it Joe remained easily the least perturbed man in the room.

Game Is Rescheduled

Harold E. Naughton, president of the Midget Baseball League, last night announced that the Don and Bud's-Lover's Leap game, postponed yesterday on account of rain, will be played Sunday at 2 p. m. at Campobello.

Rain yesterday also washed out the City Softball League and City Baseball League contests.

Four Speakers To Discuss UN On ABC Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, June 19—A Stanford, Conn., stop by America's town meeting brings a discussion on the United Nations Thursday night. The time is the usual 7:30 on ABC, and also a panel of four speakers.

Specifically the question is "Does the United Nations give a reasonable guarantee of peace?" The affirmative will be that of Quincy Howe and Clifford Hallory, former lieutenant commander. The other side will be upheld by Harris Wofford, Jr., of Student Federalists, and Thomas K. Finletter, author.

The nightly CBS feature, In My Opinion at 10:15, also is giving attention to a relation subject, "Does the veto menace the United Nations?" Speakers are James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, and Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Concert of Nations of NBC at 10:30 will pick highlights from the traditional Chinese melodies. Liang Tsai-Ping, who plays the Chinese ch'eng, or zither, will be the instrumental soloist in a guest capacity.

The Carrington Playhouse of MBS at 7 is turning next to a comedy drama bearing the label of "Country Squire." This one plays checkers on the side.

The Antonini winter concert series ends on MBS at 8:30, to be replaced the following week with a lighter form of Antonini musical output.

Gets the Worms

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — Mrs. Hilda Belcher is accustomed to dealing with all sizes and kinds of fishermen in conducting an earthworm business which nets her about $100 monthly but recently she had a new type of customer— a woman who bought $14 worth of worms for a crippled robin she had found in her yard.

Four Speakers To Discuss UN On ABC Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, June 19—A Stanford, Conn., stop by America's town meeting brings a discussion on the United Nations Thursday night. The time is the usual 7:30 on ABC, and also a panel of four speakers.

Specifically the question is "Does the United Nations give a reasonable guarantee of peace?" The affirmative will be that of Quincy Howe and Clifford Hallory, former lieutenant commander. The other side will be upheld by Harris Wofford, Jr., of Student Federalists, and Thomas K. Finletter, author

The nightly CBS feature, In My Opinion at 10:15, also is giving attention to a relation subject, "Does the veto menace the United Nations?" Speakers are James W Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, and Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

The Concert of Nations of NBC at 10:30 will pick highlights from the traditional Chinese melodies. Liang Tsai-Ping, who plays the Chinese ch'eng, or zither, will be the instrumental soloist in a guest capacity.

The Carrington Playhouse of MBS at 7 is turning next to a comedy drama bearing the label of "Country Squire." This one plays checkers on the side.

The Antonini winter concert series ends on MBS at 8:30, to be replaced the following week with a lighter form of Antonini musical output.

In loving memory of our dear husband and Father, Irvin G. McElfish, who passed away one year ago today, June 20, 1945.

More and more we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.

THE FAMILY.
6-20-1t-NT

In loving memory of our dear husband and Father, Irvin G. McElfish, who passed away one year ago today, June 20, 1945.

More and more we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.

God knows how much we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade,
Loving thoughts will ever wander
To the spot where he is laid.

Sadly missed by his wife,
BERTHA M. McELFISH
AND CHILDREN.

Husband Jailed Following Death Of Local Woman

Police Investigating after Mrs. Nile J. Michael Dies in Hospital

City, state and county authorities, investigating the death of Mrs. Irene E. Michael, 34, wife of Nile J. Michael, RFD No. 4, Oldtown road, who died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock in Memorial hospital, said last night there are no new developments and the investigation is being continued.

Mrs. Michael, also known to police as "Irene Murphy," was admitted to the hospital Saturday. Following a complaint to the state's attorney's office yesterday by her family, the husband was arrested and is being held without bond in the county jail. He was arrested at the hospital where he had gone to see his wife.

According to authorities, members of the young woman's family said Michael "struck his wife," but State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said last night he did not know if a formal charge would be placed against the man, or that if he will be given a hearing. Harris said the investigation into the woman's death is being continued.

Harris said he is awaiting a complete report on an autopsy performed on the woman's body, and as yet the cause of death has not been definitely established. He did say however, that "there were some contusions and abrasions about the body."

"The manner in which these were received has not been fully determined," Harris said.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle also stated last night the investigation is being continued, and that he has received no report on the autopsy.

Dr. H. V. Deming, acting deputy medical examiner, said the results of the autopsy were not complete last night and some further tests and study are to be made. He is expected to make a complete report of his findings to the state's attorney.

City police dockets show that the woman has been "booked" on city charges at least fourteen different times in the past several years.

The woman was committed to the county jail last September 4, after being sentenced in Trial Magistrate's Court to serve a year in the House of Correction on a charge of vagrancy. Officers said she indicated that she would appeal to Circuit Court, but the sentence was later reduced to six months and she was taken to the jail last September 10.

County officers said she served about five months of the term and was married to Michaels after her release. While she was in the county jail, Michaels paid several visits and sought to induce officers to allow them to be married in jail, but the plea was refused.

A native of Maryland, Mrs Michael, was a daughter of Mrs. Lydia Gurtler, of the Oldtown section, and the late Dory Twigg. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs Mary Shaw, Mrs. Myrtle Buckley and a Mrs. Hartsock, all of the Oldtown Road section, and Mrs Audrey Walker, of Warrior mountain.

The body is at Stein's Funeral Home where services will be held Friday at 2 p. m.

Crossing Lights To Be Discussed

Possibility of installing a system of signal lights on local crossings of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as a measure to prevent accidents will be the subject of a conference to be held in the near future between Police Commissioner William V. Keegan and railroad officials.

Crossings which were mentioned by Keegan are Baltimore, Frederick, Bedford, Knox, Pear and Franklin streets. In recent years there have been a number of accidents and several fatalities when cars have been struck on crossings in this city, Keegan said. The recent fatal accident at Hyndman, Pa., last week has caused Keegan to press for some solution to the problem, he indicated today.

Tangled traffic conditions at the Baltimore street crossing are proving troublesome both to the watchmen and city police, Keegan pointed out. Illegal parking on the short stretch between the Brunswick hotel and Gulf service station has blocked cars which could use this part of the street to pull off the crossing when the flow of traffic ahead is blocked, Keegan said.

The Baltimore street crossing situation is further complicated by the fact that four streets enter into the circle at Central Y. M. C. A. Cars crossing the circle from Front street to Park avenue are against the flow of traffic headed east across the tracks.

Several narrow escapes have been reported when cars were momentarily blocked on the crossing with trains approaching. Crossing watchmen are helpless to do anything in such situations, Keegan said.

Cofields Are Residing In Heidelberg, Germany

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Emory W. Cofield and their infant daughter, Barbara Ann, are making their home in the Schloss hotel in the famed university city of Heidelberg on the Rhine in Germany.

Col. Cofield, who went overseas with the Fifteenth army in November, 1944, is assigned at present to Third army headquarters. At the termination of his recent leave, he and Mrs. Cofield and their daughter arrived in Germany April 29, after an Atlantic crossing on the transport Thomas Berry.

Mrs. Cofield is the former Regina Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wallace, 529 Fayette street. She served for two years overseas in the Caribbean area in the army nurse corps before her marriage. Col. Cofield, who has served in the army for sixteen years, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory W. Cofield, Sr., Atlanta, Ga.

Testimony Ends In Deed Hearing

Testimony was completed yesterday morning before Chief Judge Huster in circuit court on the petition of Miss Lola Grayson, 86, against her niece, Mrs. Mary Aronhalt, and the latter's husband, Charles Aronhalt, Gephart drive. Attorneys in the case will submit briefs later, for argument in court.

The aged woman alleged that Mrs. Aronhalt induced her to sign a decree conveying her Arch street home to the latter, and said she believed the paper she signed was a will. Miss Grayson had been cared for by the niece at the Aronhalt house during an illness in December, it was testified.

F. Brooks Whiting and Paul M. Fletcher, attorneys for the niece, asserted that Miss Grayson knew she was signing the deed and denied that any fraud or deceit was exercised. They also declared that Miss Grayson retained title to the Arch street property as long as she lives.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., counsel for Miss Grayson, claimed Mrs. Aronhalt "took advantage" of her aged aunt to gain the deed to the property.

Special Sponsor Membership Drive Opened at YMCA

Announcement of a special sponsor membership campaign now being conducted by Central YMCA has been made following the monthly meeting of the "Y" board of directors at the home of Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, Braddock road.

The campaign opened June 15 and will continue until July 15. Because this year marks the one hundred and second anniversary of the founding of the YMCA movement, the goal of the campaign is to secure 102 sponsor memberships, Sisson said.

He explained that the purpose of that type of membership is for the person securing it to subscribe money needed to obtain a membership for a boy or girl in Central YMCA.

James W. Bishop, chairman of the YMCA membership committee, is in charge of the campaign, assisted by Sisson. Twenty-five workers will be designated from the board of directors and various "Y" committees to approach prospects.

During the regular reports, Bishop said that total membership now stands at 3,367, with 1,246 regular members; 1,683 in the Rec club; 243 in the Victory room club, and 195 Hi-Y members.

Sisson reported that fifty-two meetings of outside groups were held at Central YMCA during May, and that attendance for all "Y" activities during the month totaled 12,901.

Local Man Pleads For Better Use Of Stale Bread

A local man who bought some 100 packages of sandwich and frankfurter buns last Saturday at a local market "for a song" because the bread was a day old, later declared to the News that housewives here evidently need to be educated in the uses of dry bread.

The man explained that he "buys and sells practically everything" and believed he could dispose of the supply without any great difficulty and said he hated to see the bread spoil when so many millions of people in the world are hungry.

Any housewife, he said, should be able to think of dozens of ways to use stale bread, and gave bread puddings, stuffing, and French toast as practical suggestions.

Asserting that he learned about hunger in European relief after World War I, the man said he would be willing to keep the bread for six months if by so doing he could be sure that every roll was used as human food.

Miss Hausman Hurt In Fall from Porch

Miss Anna Edith Hausman, 62, 138 Polk street, a clerk in the notions department at Rosenbaum's, was reported in "good" condition last night at Allegany hospital following a fall from the front porch of her home yesterday morning.

Miss Hausman received a possible factured skull, injuries to her right ankle and shoulder, a scalp laceration and contusions above the right eye. X-ray studies have not as yet been completed.

Miss Mary Thompson, 45, 4 Grand View terrace, was treated in Allegany hospital last evening at 7 o'clock for slight burns on the face. She told attaches she was opening the door of an oven at her home and that the flames struck her in the face.

The transfer is due to the change of command of the unit from the Third Service Command to the Second army, it was reported here.

MPs said present plans call for their return to this city for three days a week in the near future.

Sgt. Miles was assigned here March 1 and Sgt. Holt March 15. There has been a permanent military police detail here since the unit was established in 1944.

EN ROUTE TO MOSCOW—Manning H. Williams, former city editor of The Cumberland News, and Mrs. Williams left New York by plane yesterday morning for Berlin from which city they will proceed by Russian plane to Moscow to take up duties at the American embassy. They plan to remain in Russia for the next two years.

Former News City Editor Leaves For Assignment in Moscow

Mr. and Mrs. Manning Williams To Remain in Russia for 2 Years

A former city editor of The Cumberland News and his wife today are en route to Moscow by plane where they will take up their respective duties at the American embassy. They plan to remain in Russia for two years.

The couple, Mr. and Mrs. Manning H. Williams, left New York on a C-54 yesterday morning and were scheduled to proceed to Newfoundland, Ireland and Berlin, arriving in the German capital sometime this afternoon. From Berlin, they will be flown to Moscow by Russian plane.

In Moscow, Williams will be information officer of the State Department's Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs (OIC) which is the peacetime successor to the Office of War Information.

Will Work on Magazine

His duties will be to assist in editing a State department magazine about America, similar to Life magazine, which is distributed in Russia, in making more American news and information available to the Soviet press and radio and in increasing, wherever possible, Russian understanding of America — the land, its people and its culture.

Mrs. Williams, the former Kathleen Zollman of New York, will do secretarial work for the embassy.

Took Language Course

Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams studied Russian for six months at the University of Colorado where Williams was assigned to the Navy Language school after return from two years' duty in the Southwest Pacific.

Williams, whose home is in Romney, W. Va., graduated from Washington and Lee university and attended Heidelberg university in Germany for a year. Returning to the United States, he was a member of the editorial staff of the Akron, Ohio, Times-Press for two years after which he became city editor of The Cumberland News. Later, he was employed on the staff of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Served in Navy

When war was declared, he entered the navy and saw service in New Guinea, the Admiralty islands and the Philippines where he served as a beachmaster in assault landings.

For the past several months, Mr. and Mrs. Williams had been residing in Washington where Williams was given the assignment of interpreting for Russian journalists visiting this country. He accompanied the Russian guests to New York and Chicago, among other places, and also entertained one of the writers at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Williams, in Romney.

BREWERY WORKERS WILL HEAR REPORT ON NEGOTIATIONS

A special meeting of Local 265, United Brewery Workers of America, will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Eagles hall so that members may hear a report of negotiations yesterday afternoon with officials of the Queen City and Cumberland Brewing Companies, O. H. Ruehl, secretary of the union, announced last evening.

Company and union officials met yesterday from 2 to 6:30 p. m., with Commissioner James A. Holden, federal conciliator, in an effort to end the strike which halted beer production at the two local breweries last Tuesday evening.

Commissioner Holden reported there was "some progress" at yesterday's meeting and added he believed it likely the parties in the dispute would meet again.

A company official said after the meeting that the "negotiations are continuing" and added there probably will be another meeting.

Three Births Reported

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hutson, 232 Gleason street, announce the birth of a son in Allegany hospital yesterday morning.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Butler, 5 Race street, in Memorial hospital yesterday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carroll, 305 Pulaski street, announce the birth of a daughter in Memorial hospital Tuesday morning.

Former Piedmont Resident Killed In Mine Accident

By GEORGE W. DADDYSMAN

WESTERNPORT, June 19.—Harper Richard Thomson, 57, a former resident of Piedmont, W. Va., was killed in a mining accident near Elkins, W. Va., this afternoon, according to work received here tonight.

Details of the accident are incomplete, but it is believed that Mr. Thomson was killed in a fall of rock. He had been working at the mine for about ten years, and resided near Elkins.

A native of Cross, W. Va., Mr. Thomson was a son of the late John and Sarah Attwell Thomson. He resided in Piedmont for a number of years at the home of his late sister, Mrs. James Adams, 126 West Hampshire street. While in Piedmont he was employed as a coal miner and also worked as a lineman for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Mr. Thomson served overseas in the First World war, and was a member of Kelly-Mansfield Post No. 52, American Legion, in Piedmont. He was unmarried.

The body will be brought to the home of his brother-in-law, James Adams, Piedmont, tomorrow afternoon. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Two Local Brothers Enter University

Two local brothers, both overseas veterans of World War II, have entered George Washington university under the GI Bill of Rights.

They are George F. and Eugene V. Blake, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Blake, 513 Henderson avenue. George, who was graduated from Allegany high school in 1935, was employed by the Goodyear Tire Company before entering service in 1942. He was honorably discharged in January.

Eugene, a 1941 graduate of LaSalle high school, was employed at the Celanese plant before entering the army in 1943. He was discharged in April after thirty-nine months' service.

The former has selected a law course and the latter is studying electrical engineering.

Seek Missing Veteran

Police were asked yesterday to aid in the search for John Allen, 25, who has been missing from his home in Mt. Savage since Tuesday. Police were told the ex-soldier is five feet, eleven inches tall, weighs 165 pounds has brown hair and a fair complexion and was wearing a tan shirt and brown pants.

Board Approves Wage Increases At Pinto Plant

Chemical Workers Receive General Wage Boost

Roy E. Funderburk, Akron, international vice president of the International Chemical Workers Union, AFL, said yesterday the Cleveland Wage Stabilization Board has approved wage increases granted at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory of the Hercules Powder Company.

The union official said the contract negotiated for the Pinto plant provides an eleven cent hourly general wage increase, retroactive to April 10, and five and ten cent hourly night differentials for second and third shift workers, retroactive to April 29.

Six paid holidays, double time for holidays worked and strict seniority were included in the contract which the union official said was similar to working agreements in force in other parts of the powder industry.

The union received its charter as Local 261, Chemical Workers Union, in April after the union was certified as the bargaining agent for the workers of the plant.

Edward Brigham To Give Recital at Frostburg Teachers College Today

Edward Brigham, nationally known entertainer will present a song and dramatic recital at Frostburg State Teachers college this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Miss Lillian C. Compton, college president said last night.

The recital is a part of the cultural program offered at the college, without charge to students, teachers and friends. Anyone interested will be welcome, Miss Compton stated.

The summer course opened at the school yesterday with an enrollment of about 130 students for the ten-weeks' course, including a number of teachers taking the course to renew teaching certificates. The enrollment also included thirty-eight veterans, Miss Compton said, and is double that of 1945.

Electric Iron Causes Darling Shop Fire

Firemen were called to the Darling Shop, 101 Baltimore street, Tuesday evening at 8:53 o'clock when an electric iron left by a worker burned through an ironing board.

Firemen said the only fire damage was to the board since the iron did not burn through the floor of the workroom, but reported the smoke damage might be considerable. Fire fighters reported there was some difficulty in locating the source of the fire due to the smoke.

Children going upstairs to the Winter studio discovered the smoke and turned in an alarm, firemen said.

Local Beer Shortage Puts Crimp In Night Life Around the Loop

A trip "around the loop" last night just after Joe Louis kayoed Billy Conn in the eighth round, indicated that night life in Cumberland "ain't what it used to be."

Since the local brewery workers went on strike and halted production and deliveries to taverns, beer parlors, cafes, clubs and other usually popular night spots, night crowds seem to be drying up.

"There is a definite lull," one police officer said, as he walked a couple of blocks discussing the situation and the fight. "Things on my beat are so quiet lately," he declared, "it isn't much fun anymore."

Four Taverns Closed

Along North Mechanic street at 10 p. m., four taverns or beer places had already closed. On Centre street, one saloon and one beer parlor were darkened. A couple of so-called cocktail lounges were still "going strong," but they offered no beer for sale.

Up along "Burma road" (Front street, that is), half of the usually noisy beer places were silent, and in those which remained open there were only one or two customers. In one of these, one customer was loudly discussing the fight with the bartender.

Most of those who can't get beer are either staying at home, going to movies or elsewhere, except a few who still hang around their favorite haunts, if they are open, drinking wine or whiskey or gin.

Some of the beer places are really suffering financially, because beer is the life-blood of their trade. Without beer, customers are as scarce as butter, so they just close and go home. The places with wine and whiskey are doing a little business, but volume is off and problems are greater.

There was a time when a fellow could take a nightly tour around the "loop," and get a kind of kick out of watching people, or being stopped by an acquaintance "in his cups" and given a tip or two of news or a few juicy morsels of gossip which were seldom fit to print. But that didn't happen last night.

Boy Needed Nickel

On the way back to the office, however, and 8 or 9-year-old boy stopped, exhibited a five-cent piece in his hand, and said, "Mister, I want to go home and I need another nickel for bus fare".

He's started young, but he'll probably figure out a new approach. We gave him a bus ticket.

Salesman Found Dead in Centre Street Apartment

William H. Stair Was Well Known Advertising Material Agent

William Henry Stair, 56, well known specialty advertising material salesman, was found dead yesterday morning in his apartment at 445 North Centre street.

Dr. H. V. Deming, acting deputy county medical examiner, who investigated, said the man had been dead since Monday and set the time of death at about 11 p. m.

The medical examiner said death resulted from a heart condition and added that Mr. Stair had been suffering from a heart ailment for several years.

Body Is Discovered

Dr. Deming explained that the body was found by the occupant of the first floor of the home after she noticed water dripping from the ceiling and investigated, believing the trickle was due to a leak in the roof which might have developed during the recent heavy rains.

He explained that the water was overflowing from a pan under the ice box and that Mr. Stair was found dead in his bed in the second floor apartment.

His widow, Mrs. Irma Koontz Stair, who had been visiting her mother in Bedford, Pa., for about a week, returned here yesterday after she was notified of her husband's death.

Was Active Sportsman

Mr. Stair was formerly employed as a bartender and plumber and was well known in this section as a baseball and football player and sports fan. He was born April 14, 1890, in Huntington, W. Va.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons of a previous marriage, James C. Stair, clerk at the LaVale state police barracks, and William Stair, Jr., both of Frostburg.

Cumberland Man Gets Divorce

Chief Judge William A. Huster Tuesday granted an absolute divorce to George A. Bittner, 36, Cumberland, from Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bittner, and gave the petitioner the custody of four minor children.

Bittner testified that his wife "simply walked out on me." According to his attorney, William E. McHugh, they were married in 1930 and separated in 1942.

The court granted an absolute decree to Vernon W. Groves, 34, Cumberland, from Mrs. Thelma V. Groves. She was allowed to resume her maiden name, Thelma Wilson. His attorney, F. Brooke Whiting, said they were married December 8, 1940, and lived together until March 26 this year.

Mras. Margaret L. Hagelin has docketed suit for a divorce from August Hagelin, Jr., but no bill of complaint was filed by her counsel Harold E. Naughton.

Oliver W. Smith, represented by Lewis M Wilson, also docketed suit for a divorce from Mrs. Mary Z. Smith. Grounds were not disclosed.

Textile Mill Seeks Mandatory Price Relief In Washington Court

The General Textile Mills, Incorporated, Lonaconing, Monday filed a petition for mandatory relief in United States Emergency Court of Appeals in Washington in which the firm charged OPA with delaying unduly action on a protest against MPR-168, as amended, and failing to grant a price increase promised the company a month ago. The Appeals court is asked to order speedy action by OPA.

The company avers it has met all requirements of OPA as to filing of financial and other information since filing of the protest in Oct., 1945. During the past 18 months, the company alleges, it has appealed for relief from prices on a number of occasions, basing such relief on losses caused by wage increases.

On July 18, 1945, the mill was forced to close down, it was alleged, because of losses from increased production costs. The mill was reopened in March, 1946 and at that time, it is averred, an agreement was entered into with Textile Workers Union granting a further increase in wages to the employes. The agreement was approved by National Wage and Hour Stabilization Board.

The new wage scale provided for a minimum wage of 65 cents per hour, with an incentive piece-work rate set to yield average departmental earnings of 72½ cents per hour, it was stated. Average wages of direct labor in 1941 were 37½ cents per hour and in 1944, 60 cents per hour, it was further stated. This represents, the company avers, an increase in the average wage rate for direct labor of 93 per cent over the year 1941 and 20 per cent over 1944.

On April 16, 1946, OPA, it is averred, agreed that an increase in prices would be granted and that an order would be out no later than the middle of May. The company avers that unless OPA carries out its promise of a price increase it will be unable to operate.

The office, which would be staffed by a local expediter and a secretary, would serve Allegany, Garrett, Frederick and Washington counties, Carroll said.

Problems of construction will be handled, but the office will not undertake placement of families in already existing homes, the USES manager said, pointing out that the chief function of the office will be to expedite the building of new homes.

Woman Says Mate Tried To Strangle Her; Asks Divorce

Mrs. Amalda M. Bender, Glenn street, yesterday filed suit for an absolute divorce in circuit court claiming that she was forced to flee from the home of her husband, Weldon D. Bender, 223 Harrison street, when he tried to strangle her while she was in bed the night of June 8.

The petitioner said she escaped, clad only in her night clothing, and ran to the home of a sister on Park street. The wife also charged that her husband had been cruel to her on previous occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Bender were married July 3, 1940, in Cumberland according to her attonrey, William H. Geppert.

Mrs. Bender also charged that she obtained a room at 230 Glenn street after the alleged beating and that her husband has been following her on the streets and attempting to enter the place. She added that he had been discharged from a local plant because of frequent absence from work.

Chief Judge William A. Huster issued a restraining order forbidding Bender from molesting his wife attempting to enter the Glenn street home.

George Clayton Cauley, represented by Morgan C. Harris, has filed suit for an absolute divorce from Mrs. Margaret Geneva Cauley, 70 Madison avenue. He said they were married May 1, 1940, in Cumberland and lived together until March 31, 1941.

Husband Jailed Following Death Of Local Woman

Police Investigating after Mrs. Nile J. Michael Dies in Hospital

City, state and county authorities, investigating the death of Mrs. Irene E. Michael, 34, wife of Nile J. Michael, RFD No. 4, Oldtown road, who died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock in Memorial hospital, said last night there are no new developments and the investigation is being continued.

Mrs. Michael, also known to police as "Irene Murphy," was admitted to the hospital Saturday. Following a complaint to the state's attorney's office yesterday by her family, the husband was arrested and is being held without bond in the county jail. He was arrested at the hospital where he had gone to see his wife.

According to authorities, members of the young woman's family said Michael "struck his wife," but State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said last night he did not know if a formal charge would be placed against the man, or that if he will be given a hearing. Harris said the investigation into the woman's death is being continued.

Harris said he is awaiting a complete report on an autopsy performed on the woman's body, and as yet the cause of death has not been definitely established. He did say howver, that "there were some contusions and abrasions about the body."

"The manner in which these were received has not been fully determined," Harris said.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle also stated last night the investigation is being continued, and that he has received no report on the autopsy.

Dr. H. V. Deming, acting deputy medical examiner, said the results of the autopsy were not complete last night and some further tests and study are to be made. He is expected to make a complete report of his findings to the state's attorney.

City police dockets show that the woman has been "booked" on city charges at least fourteen different times in the past several years.

The woman was committed to the county jail last September 4, after being sentenced in Trial Magistrate's Court to serve a year in the House of Correction on a charge of vagrancy. Officers said she indicated that she would appeal to Circuit Court, but the sentence was later reduced to six months and she was taken to the jail last September 10.

County officers said she served about five months of the term and was married to Michaels after her release. While she was in the county jail, Michaels paid several visits and sought to induce officers to allow them to be married in jail, but the plea was refused.

A native of Maryland, Mrs Michael, was a daughter of Mrs. Lydia Gurtler, of the Oldtown section, and the late Dory Twigg. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs Mary Shaw, Mrs. Myrtle Buckley and a Mrs. Hartsock, all of the Oldtown Road section, and Mrs Audrey Walker, of Warrior mountain.

The body is at Stein's Funeral Home where services will be held Friday at 2 p. m.

Crossing Lights To Be Discussed

Possibility of installing a system of signal lights on local crossings of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as a measure to prevent accidents will be the subject of a conference to be held in the near future between Police Commissioner William V. Keegan and railroad officials.

Crossings which were mentioned by Keegan are Baltimore, Frederick, Bedford, Knox, Pear and Franklin streets. In recent years there have been a number of accidents and several fatalities when cars have been struck on crossings in this city, Keegan said. The recent fatal accident at Hyndman, Pa., last week has caused Keegan to press for some solution to the problem, he indicated today.

Tangled traffic conditions at the Baltimore street crossing are proving troublesome both to the watchmen and city police, Keegan pointed out. Illegal parking on the short stretch between the Brunswick hotel and Gulf service station has blocked cars which could use this part of the street to pull off the crossing when the flow of traffic ahead is blocked, Keegan said.

The Baltimore street crossing situation is further complicated by the fact that four streets enter into the circle at Central Y. M. C. A. Cars crossing the circle from Front street to Park avenue are against the flow of traffic headed east across the tracks.

Several narrow escapes have been reported when cars were momentarily blocked on the crossing with trains approaching. Crossing watchmen are helpless to do anything in such situations, Keegan said.

Mrs. Cofield is the former Regina Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wallace, 529 Fayette street. She served for two years overseas in the Caribbean area in the army nurse corps before her marriage. Col. Cofield, who has served in the army for sixteen years, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory W. Cofield, Sr., Atlanta, Ga.

Testimony Ends In Deed Hearing

Testimony was completed yesterday morning before Chief Judge Huster in circuit court on the petition of Miss Lola Grayson, 86, against her niece, Mrs. Mary Aronhalt, and the latter's husband, Charles Aronhalt, Gephart drive. Attorneys in the case will submit briefs later, for argument in court.

The aged woman alleged that Mrs. Aronhalt induced her to sign a decree conveying her Arch street home to the latter, and said she believed the paper she signed was a will. Miss Grayson had been cared for by the niece at the Aronhalt house during an illness in December, it was testified.

F. Brooks Whiting and Paul M. Fletcher, attorneys for the niece, asserted that Miss Grayson knew she was signing the deed and denied that any fraud or deceit was exercised. They also declared that Miss Grayson retained title to the Arch street property as long as she lives.

Edward J. Ryan and William L. Wilson, Jr., counsel for Miss Grayson, claimed Mrs. Aronhalt "took advantage" of her aged aunt to gain the deed to the property.

Special Sponsor Membership Drive Opened at YMCA

Announcement of a special sponsor membership campaign now being conducted by Central YMCA has been made following the monthly meeting of the "Y" board of directors at the home of Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary, Braddock road.

The campaign opened June 15 and will continue until July 15. Because this year marks the one hundred and second anniversary of the founding of the YMCA movement, the goal of the campaign is to secure 102 sponsor memberships, Sisson said.

He explained that the purpose of that type of membership is for the person securing it to subscribe money needed to obtain a membership for a boy or girl in Central YMCA.

James W. Bishop, chairman of the YMCA membership committee, is in charge of the campaign, assisted by Sisson. Twenty-five workers will be designated from the board of directors and various "Y" committees to approach prospects.

During the regular reports, Bishop said that total membership now stands at 3,367, with 1,246 regular members; 1,683 in the Rec club; 243 in the Victory room club, and 195 Hi-Y members.

Sisson reported that fifty-two meetings of outside groups were held at Central YMCA during May, and that attendance for all "Y" activities during the month totaled 12,901.

Local Man Pleads For Better Use Of Stale Bread

A local man who bought some 100 packages of sandwich and frankfurter buns last Saturday at a local market "for a song" because the bread was a day old, later declared to the News that housewives here evidently need to be educated in the uses of dry bread.

The man explained that he "buys and sells practically everything" and believed he could dispose of the supply without any great difficulty and said he hated to see the bread spoil when so many millions of people in the world are hungry.

Any housewife, he said, should be able to think of dozens of ways to use stale bread, and gave bread puddings, stuffing, and French toast as practical suggestions.

Asserting that he learned about hunger in European relief after World War I, the man said he would be willing to keep the bread for six months if by so doing he could be sure that every roll was used as human food.

Board Approves Wage Increases At Pinto Plant

Six paid holidays, double time for holidays worked and strict seniority were included in the contract which the union official said was similar to working agreements in force in other parts of the powder industry.

Electric Iron Causes Darling Shop Fire

Firemen were called to the Darling Shop, 101 Baltimore street, Tuesday evening at 8:53 o'clock when an electric iron left by a worker burned through an ironing board.

Firemen said the only fire damage was to the board since the iron did not burn through the floor of the workroom, but reported the smoke damage might be considerable. Fire fighters reported there was some difficulty in locating the source of the fire due to the smoke.

Children going upstairs to the Winter studio discovered the smoke and turned in an alarm, firemen said.

Local Beer Shortage Puts Crimp In Night Life Around the Loop

A trip "around the loop" last night just after Joe Louis kayoed Billy Conn in the eighth round, indicated that night life in Cumberland "ain't what it used to be."

Since the local brewery workers went on strike and halted production and deliveries to taverns, beer parlors, cafes, clubs and other usually popular night spots, night crowds seem to be drying up.

"There is a definite lull," one police officer said, as he walked a couple of blocks discussing the situation and the fight. "Things on my beat are so quiet lately," he declared, "it isn't much fun anymore."

Four Taverns Closed

Along North Mechanic street at 10 p. m., four taverns or beer places had already closed. On Centre street, one saloon and one beer parlor were darkened. A couple of so-called cocktail lounges were still "going strong," but they offered no beer for sale.

Up along "Burma road" (Front street, that is), half of the usually noisy beer places were silent, and in those which remained open there were only one or two customers. In one of these, one customer was loudly discussing the fight with the bartender.

Most of those who can't get beer are either staying at home, going to movies or elsewhere, except a few who still hang around their favorite haunts, if they are open, drinking wine or whiskey or gin.

Some of the beer places are really suffering financially, because beer is the life-blood of their trade. Without beer, customers are as scarce as butter, so they just close and go home. The places with wine and whiskey are doing a little business, but volume is off and problems are greater.

There was a time when a fellow could take a nightly tour around the "loop," and get a kind of kick out of watching people, or being stopped by an acquaintance "in his cups" and given a tip or two of news or a few juicy morsels of gossip which were seldom fit to print. But that didn't happen last night.

Boy Needed Nickel

On the way back to the office, however, and 8 or 9-year-old boy stopped, exhibited a five-cent piece in his hand, and said, "Mister, I want to go home and I need another nickel for bus fare".

He's started young, but he'll probably figure out a new approach. We gave him a bus ticket.

Salesman Found Dead in Centre Street Apartment

William H. Stair Was Well Known Advertising Material Agent

William Henry Stair, 56, well known specialty advertising material salesman, was found dead yesterday morning in his apartment at 445 North Centre street.

Dr. H. V. Deming, acting deputy county medical examiner, who investigated, said the man had been dead since Monday and set the time of death at about 11 p. m.

The medical examiner said death resulted from a heart condition and added that Mr. Stair had been suffering from a heart ailment for several years.

Body Is Discovered

Dr. Deming explained that the body was found by the occupant of the first floor of the home after she noticed water dripping from the ceiling and investigated, believing the trickle was due to a leak in the roof which might have developed during the recent heavy rains.

He explained that the water was overflowing from a pan under the ice box and that Mr. Stair was found dead in his bed in the second floor apartment.

His widow, Mrs. Irma Koontz Stair, who had been visiting her mother in Bedford, Pa., for about a week, returned here yesterday after she was notified of her husband's death.

Was Active Sportsman

Mr. Stair was formerly employed as a bartender and plumber and was well known in this section as a baseball and football player and sports fan. He was born April 14, 1890, in Huntington, W. Va.

Besides his widow, he is survived by two sons of a previous marriage, James C. Stair, clerk at the LaVale state police barracks, and William Stair, Jr., both of Frostburg.

The body is at the Hafer funeral home.

Cumberland Man Gets Divorce

Chief Judge William A. Huster Tuesday granted an absolute divorce to George A. Bittner, 36, Cumberland, from Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bittner, and gave the petitioner the custody of four minor children.

Bittner testified that his wife "simply walked out on me." According to his attorney, William E. McHugh, they were married in 1930 and separated in 1942.

Textile Mill Seeks Mandatory Price Relief In Washington Court

The General Textile Mills, Incorporated, Lonaconing, Monday filed a petition for mandatory relief in United States Emergency Court of Appeals in Washington in which the firm charged OPA with delaying unduly action on a protest against MPR-168, as amended, and failing to grant a price increase promised the company a month ago. The Appeals court is asked to order speedy action by OPA.

The company avers it has met all requirements of OPA as to filing of financial and other information since filing of the protest in Oct., 1945. During the past 18 months, the company alleges, it has appealed for relief from prices on a number of occasions, basing such relief on losses caused by wage increases.

On July 18, 1945, the mill was forced to close down, it was alleged, because of losses from increased production costs. The mill was reopened in March, 1946 and at that time, it is averred, an agreement was entered into with Textile Workers Union granting a further increase in wages to the employes. The agreement was approved by National Wage and Hour Stabilization Board.

The new wage scale provided for a minimum wage of 65 cents per hour, with an incentive piece-work rate set to yield average departmental earnings of 72½ cents per hour, it was stated. Average wages of direct labor in 1941 were 37½ cents per hour and in 1944, 60 cents per hour, it was further stated. This represents, the company avers, an increase in the average wage rate for direct labor of 93 per cent over the year 1941 and 20 per cent over 1944.

On April 16, 1946, OPA, it is averred, agreed that an increase in prices would be granted and that an order would be out no later than the middle of May. The company avers that unless OPA carries out its promise of a price increase it will be unable to operate.
